Splunk Phantom Certified Admin Sample Questions (Q51-Q56):

NEW QUESTION # 51

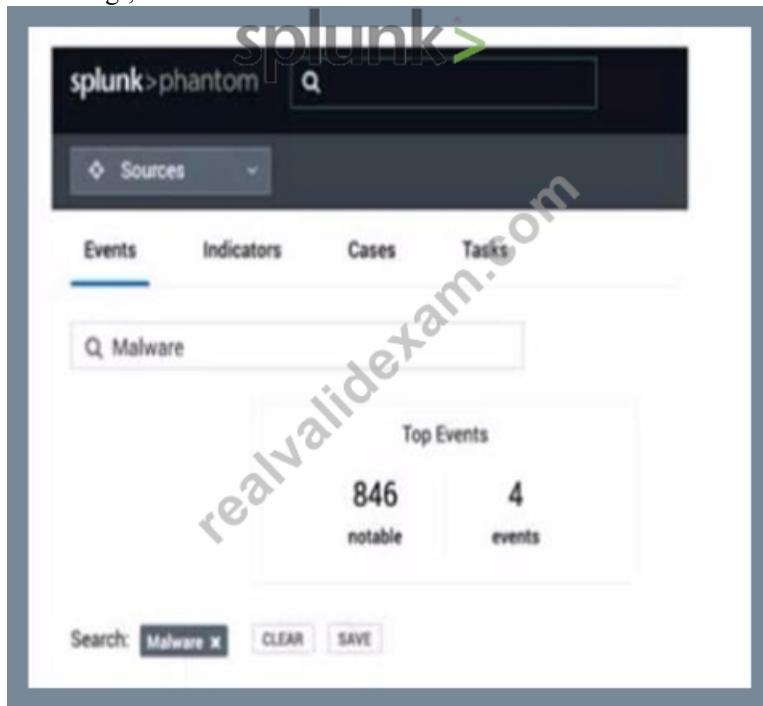

Which Phantom API command is used to create a custom list?

- A. phantom.new_list()
- B. phantom.add_list()
- C. phantom.create_list()
- D. phantom.include_list()

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 52

In this image, which container fields are searched for the text "Malware"?

The screenshot shows the Splunk Phantom interface. The top navigation bar has 'splunk>phantom' and a search bar. Below the bar, a dropdown menu is open over 'Sources'. The main content area has tabs for 'Events' (which is selected), 'Indicators', 'Cases', and 'Tasks'. A search bar at the top of the content area contains the text 'Q. Malware'. Below the search bar, a 'Top Events' section displays '846 notable' and '4 events'. At the bottom of the content area, there is a 'Search: Malware X' bar with 'CLEAR' and 'SAVE' buttons.

- A. Event Name or ID.
- B. Event Name and Artifact Names.
- C. Event Name, Notes, Comments.

Answer: A

Explanation:

In the image provided, the search functionality within Splunk's Phantom Security Orchestration, Automation, and Response (SOAR) platform is shown. When you enter a search term like "Malware" in the search bar, Splunk Phantom will typically search through the container fields that are most relevant to identifying and categorizing events. Containers in Phantom are used to group related events, indicators, cases, and tasks. They contain various fields that can be searched through, such as the Event Name or ID, which are primary identifiers for a container. This search does not extend to fields such as Notes or Comments, which are ancillary text entries linked to an event or container. Artifact Names are part of the container's data structure but are not the primary search target in this context unless specifically configured to be included in the search scope.

NEW QUESTION # 53

Without customizing container status within Phantom, what are the three types of status for a container?

- A. New, In Progress, Closed
- B. Mew, Open, Resolved
- C. Low, Medium, Critical
- D. Low, Medium, High

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation

The correct answer is C because without customizing container status within Phantom, the three types of status for a container are New, Open, and Resolved. A container is a data object that represents an event or incident that needs to be investigated or remediated. A container has a status attribute that indicates its current state. The default values for the status attribute are New, Open, and Resolved. New means that the container has been created but not yet processed. Open means that the container is being processed by a playbook or a user. Resolved means that the container has been processed and closed. You can customize the container status values in the Phantom UI by going to Administration > Product Settings > Container Status. See Splunk SOAR Documentation for more details.

NEW QUESTION # 54

When configuring a Splunk asset for Phantom to connect to a SplunkCloud instance, the user discovers that they need to be able to run two different on_poll searches. How is this possible

- A. Configure a second Splunk asset with the second query.
- B. Enter the two queries in the asset as comma separated values.
- C. Configure the second query in the Phantom app for Splunk.
- D. Install a second Splunk app and configure the query in the second app.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Explanation

The correct answer is D because to run two different on_poll searches, you need to configure a second Splunk asset with the second query. The on_poll search is the query that Phantom uses to fetch events from Splunk and create containers and artifacts. You can only specify one on_poll search per Splunk asset. If you want to run another on_poll search, you need to create another Splunk asset with a different name and IP address and configure the second query in the asset settings. See Splunk SOAR Documentation for more details.

NEW QUESTION # 55

Which of the following is a best practice for use of the global block?

- A. Execute custom code after each run of the playbook.
- B. Execute code at the beginning of each run of the playbook.
- C. Declare outputs which will be selectable within playbook blocks.
- D. Import packages which will be used within the playbook.

Answer: D

Explanation:

The global block within a Splunk SOAR playbook is primarily used to import external packages or define global variables that will be utilized across various parts of the playbook. This block sets the stage for the playbook by ensuring that all necessary libraries, modules, or predefined variables are available for use in subsequent actions, decision blocks, or custom code segments within the playbook. This practice promotes code reuse and efficiency, enabling more sophisticated and powerful playbook designs by leveraging external functionalities.
