Appian Senior Developer Sample Questions (Q59-Q64):

NEW QUESTION # 59

You're developing a user input form for a financial services application.

One component of this form requires you to embed an external site (in the form of a URL) that can receive inputs from Appian and return updates as the user interacts with it.

What should you do?

- A. Use an integration to achieve interaction with the embedded site while displaying information in the Appian out-of-the-box Web Content Component. That way you can refresh for updates and interact with the site.
- B. Use a component plug-in to achieve interaction with the embedded site, because this use case requires input-output or event parameters.
- C. Use the Appian out-of-the-box Web Content Component. It can display content from a URL and provide both additional inputs, or receive updates as the user interacts with the embedded site.

Answer: B

Explanation:

A component plug-in is required because the standard Web Content Component in Appian only displays external sites and does not support direct two-way interaction or input/output event handling. A plug-in enables custom integration to allow input and receive updates as users interact with the embedded site.

NEW QUESTION # 60

You need to relate two entities, Employee and Skill, in the data structure. You want to adhere to Appian best practices.

Employees can have multiple skills, and a single skill can relate to multiple employees.

What type of relationship do these entities represent, and what is the minimum number of tables required to implement the design?

- A. Many-to-many; 3 tables
- B. One-to-many; 2 tables
- C. Many-to-many; 2 tables

Answer: A

Explanation:

The relationship between Employee and Skill is many-to-many - an employee can have multiple skills, and each skill can belong to multiple employees.

To model this properly and according to Appian best practices, you need 3 tables:

EmployeeSkill (junction/association) table - contains foreign keys referencing both Employee and Skill to manage the many-to-many relationship.

NEW QUESTION # 61

You're designing an expression rule that needs to retrieve employees from a database for a given department and display their full name concatenated with their role in a list for a dropdown field.

Which design approach should you recommend?

- A. Query the data to return all employees. Using `a!forEach()`, for each item in the list, if the employee belongs to the given department, return the employee name and role, otherwise, return a null value.
- B. Query the data with a filter applied to only return employees for the given department. Using `a!forEach()`, for each item in the list, return the employee name and role.
- C. Query the data to return all employees. Use `wherecontains()` to return the employees for the given department and use `a!forEach()` to return the employee name and role for each item in the list.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Querying the data with a filter to return only employees for the given department is the most efficient approach. Then, using `a!forEach()` to concatenate and return the employee name and role meets the dropdown display requirement without unnecessary processing.

NEW QUESTION # 62

You need to select a plug-in to meet a specific requirement and several plug-ins can do the job.

What are three key factors to consider? (Choose three.)

- A. What is the size of the plug-in?
- B. What are the compatible Appian versions?
- C. Is the plug-in approved for use in the Cloud?
- D. Is the plug-in open source or proprietary?
- E. Who is the creator of the plug-in?
- F. What are the limitations of the plug-in?

Answer: B,C,F

Explanation:

Limitations of the plug-in help you understand constraints or potential issues that could impact your implementation.
Compatible Appian versions ensure the plug-in will work correctly in your current and future environments.
Cloud approval status is essential for Appian Cloud environments, as only approved plug-ins are permitted for deployment.

NEW QUESTION # 63

You're creating an interface to display all the employees of a company on a staff list.

You decide to use `a!gridField()` to create a user grid to display information from the company's AAA_Employee record, which has 42 fields relating to various employee information. To avoid cluttering the grid, you want to show six (6) fields on the grid. How should you optimize the interface?

- A. Call the function `a!forEach()` in a local variable and query the AAA_Employee for each employee separately by using `a!queryRecordType()` to loop through all employees as defined by a constant to be used in the data parameter of `a!gridField()`.
- B. Using a local variable, query the AAA_Employee record using `a!queryRecordType()`, without defining the six (6) fields you require to show in the "fields" parameter to be used in the data parameter of `a!gridField()`.
- C. Query the AAA_Employee record using `a!queryRecordType()`, defining the six (6) fields you require to show in the "fields" parameter to be used in the data parameter of `a!gridField()`.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Querying the AAA_Employee record with `a!queryRecordType()`, specifying only the six fields needed in the fields parameter, optimizes data retrieval and improves grid performance by minimizing unnecessary data loading.
