CISI Investment Funds in Canada (IFC) Exam Sample Questions (Q226-Q231):

NEW QUESTION # 226

Xerxes, 45 years old, is a successful architect, having an annual income of $185,000. He has around $10,000 in his non-registered account, which he is looking to invest in a tax-efficient manner.

From the following options, which would be the most tax-efficient?

- A. asset allocation fund
- B. Canadian equity index fund
- C. bond fund
- D. target date fund

Answer: B

Explanation:

A Canadian equity index fund would be the most tax-efficient option for Xerxes. A Canadian equity index fund is a type of mutual fund that invests in a portfolio of Canadian stocks that track a specific market index, such as the S&P/TSX Composite Index. A Canadian equity index fund would be tax-efficient for Xerxes because it would generate mostly capital gains and eligible dividends, which are taxed at lower rates than interest income or foreign dividends. A Canadian equity index fund would also have low turnover and minimal distributions, which would defer taxes until Xerxes sells his units. The other options are less tax-efficient than a Canadian equity index fund. A target date fund is a type of mutual fund that adjusts its asset allocation over time based on a predetermined retirement date. A target date fund would be less tax-efficient than a Canadian equity index fund because it would have higher turnover and more distributions, which would trigger taxes every year. A target date fund would also invest in a mix of asset classes, such as bonds and foreign equities, which would generate interest income and foreign dividends that are taxed at higher rates than capital gains and eligible dividends. A bond fund is a type of mutual fund that invests in a portfolio of fixed-income securities, such as government bonds, corporate bonds, and mortgage-backed securities. A bond fund would be less tax-efficient than a Canadian equity index fund because it would generate mostly interest income, which is taxed at the highest rate among different types of investment income. A bond fund would also have regular distributions, which would trigger taxes every year. An asset allocation fund is a type of mutual fund that invests in a portfolio of other mutual funds that cover different asset classes, such as stocks, bonds, and cash equivalents. An asset allocation fund would be less tax-efficient than a Canadian equity index fund because it would have higher fees and more distributions, which would reduce the net returns and trigger taxes every year. An asset allocation fund would also invest in a mix of asset classes, some of which would generate interest income and foreign dividends that are taxed at higher rates than capital gains and eligible dividends. ### NEW QUESTION # 227

Jabir recently joined Prosper Wealth Inc. and is looking forward to being a Dealing Representative for the firm. Which of the following statements CORRECTLY describe when Jabir will be eligible to open new client accounts and sell investments?

- A. Upon employment with the dealer
- B. Upon passing the proficiency course
- C. Upon registration application by the dealer
- D. Upon formal confirmation from the regulator

Answer: D

Explanation:

Jabir will be eligible to open new client accounts and sell investments only after he receives formal confirmation from the securities regulator that he is registered as a Dealing Representative. This is because registration is a legal requirement for anyone who trades securities or advises clients on securities in Canada, unless an exemption applies. Registration helps protect investors by ensuring that only qualified and competent individuals and firms can conduct securities related business. Jabir must also meet the proficiency, solvency, and suitability requirements for registration, as well as comply with the ongoing obligations of a registrant. Passing the proficiency course and being employed by the dealer are necessary but not sufficient conditions for registration. The dealer must apply for registration on behalf of Jabir and wait for the regulator's approval.

What type of risk is the fundamental risk factor for fixed-income securities?

- A. Market risk
- B. Reinvestment risk
- C. Liquidity risk
- D. Interest rate risk

Answer: D

Explanation:

Interest rate risk is the primary risk for fixed-income securities, as their value decreases when interest rates rise due to fixed cash flows. The feedback from the document states:

"Interest rate risk is the fundamental risk factor for fixed-income securities such as bonds, mortgages and preferred shares. As interest rates move up, the value of a fixed-income security falls. This is because the cash flow from the fixed-income security is fixed." Reference: Chapter 11 - Conservative Mutual Fund Products Learning Domain: Analysis of Mutual Funds

- A. 10% in a bond fund, 80% in equity funds, 10% in a money market fund
- B. 35% in equity, 25% in a money market fund, 60% in a bond fund
- C. 10% in equity funds, 70% in a bond fund, 20% in a money market fund
- D. 50% in equity funds, 20% in a bond fund, and 30% in a money market fund

Answer: A

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation From Exact Extract:

Ian, as a Stage 1 - Early Earning Years investor, has no family or financial commitments, allowing for a higher risk tolerance. An asset allocation with a heavy equity weighting, such as 80% in equity funds, is suitable. The feedback from the document states: "Ian would be considered a Stage 1 - Early Earning Years investor. Stage 1 investors, in general, are free of family and financial commitments, and would typically have a higher ability to tolerate risk. Thus, with its higher level of risk and lower component of income-based investments, 10% in a bond fund, 80% in equity funds and 10% in a money market fund would be most likely to be suitable."
