Salesforce Platform Developer II Sample Questions (Q131-Q136):

NEW QUESTION # 131

A Visualforce page needs to make a callout to get billing information and tax information from two different REST endpoints. The information needs to be displayed to the user at the same time and the return value of the billing information contains the input for the tax information callout. Each endpoint might take up to two minutes to process.
How should a developer implement the callouts?

- A. An HTTP REST callout for the billing callout and a Continuation for the tax callout
- B. A Continuation for both the billing callout and the tax callout
- C. An HTTP REST callout for both the billing callout and the tax callout
- D. A Continuation for the billing callout and an HTTP REST callout for the tax callout

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 132

The Lightning Component allows users to click a button to save their changes and then redirects them to a different page. Currently, when the user hits the Save button, the records are getting saved, but they are not redirected. Which three techniques can a developer use to debug the JavaScript?1

- A. Enable Debug Mode for Lightning components for the user.9
- B. Use the browser's dev tools to debug the JavaScript.2
- C. Use Developer Console to view the debug log.34
- D. Use console.log() messages in the JavaScript.56
- E. Use Developer Console to view7 checkpoints.8

Answer: A,B,D

Explanation:
Debugging client-side JavaScript in Lightning components requires different tools than debugging server-side Apex.
First, using the browser's developer tools (Option A) is the most powerful method. It allows developers to set breakpoints in the controller or helper files, inspect the values of component attributes in real-time, and step through the redirection logic line-by-line. To make this process easier, the developer should Enable Debug Mode (Option E) in Salesforce Setup. By default, Lightning code is "minified" (compressed) to improve performance, making it nearly impossible to read in dev tools. Enabling Debug Mode serves the uncompressed source code to the browser, making the scripts human-readable.
Additionally, inserting console.log() messages (Option C) is a standard technique to output variable states or execution markers to the browser's console. This helps verify if the helper.saveAndRedirect function is being reached and if the redirection parameters are correct.
Options B and D are incorrect because the Developer Console's debug logs and checkpoints are strictly for server-side Apex execution. They do not capture JavaScript errors or the execution flow of the Lightning framework in the browser.

- A. SOAP/XML and SOAP/JSON

NEW QUESTION # 134

A developer is asked to develop a new AppFxchange application. A feature of the program creates Survey records when a Case reaches a certain stage and is of a certain Record Type. This feature needs to be configurable, as different Salesforce instances require Surveys at different times. Additionally, the out-of-the-box AppExchange app needs to come with a set of best practice settings that apply to most customers.

What should the developer use to store and package the custom configuration settings for the app?

- A. Custom metadata
- B. Custom objects
- C. Custom labels
- D. Custom settings

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 135

A company has many different unit test methods that create Account records as part of their data setup. A new required field was added to the Account and now all of the unit tests fail.

What is the optimal way for a developer to fix the issue?

- A. Add a before insert trigger on Account to set the value of the required field,
- B. Change the required field to be a validation rule that excludes the System Administrator profile.
- C. Create a TestDataFactory class that serves as the single place to create Accounts for unit tests and set the required field there.
- D. Add the required field to the data setup for all of the unit tests.

Answer: C

Explanation:

The optimal way to fix the failing unit tests after adding a new required field to the Account object is to create a TestDataFactory class that serves as a centralized place to create Accounts for unit tests. This class would include the new required field, ensuring that all unit tests have the necessary data setup.
