To align with UiPath's best practices when updating the REFramework template for use with Orchestrator queues, the sequence of steps should ensure proper setup of the queues in Orchestrator, configuration of the project to interact with these queues, and implementation of the business logic to process items from the queues.

Here's how the steps should be sequenced:

Step 1: Create the queue in Orchestrator and set its Auto Retry value as required by the process documentation. This step ensures that the queue is available in Orchestrator with the correct settings before the automation attempts to interact with it.

Step 2: Edit the project's configuration file (Data/Config.xlsx) and configure parameters OrchestratorQueueName and OrchestratorQueueFolder. Once the queue is created, the next step is to ensure that the automation project is configured to reference the correct queue and folder within Orchestrator.

Step 3: Edit GetTransactionData.xaml workflow and assign a proper value for the out_TransactionID argument. This configuration allows the workflow to correctly fetch transaction items from the Orchestrator queue for processing.

Step 4: Edit workflow Process.xaml and implement the logic to process each TransactionItem. Finally, the core processing logic that operates on each queue item is implemented, allowing the automation to perform the necessary actions for each transaction.

- A. Value: 4
Data Type: Object
- B. Value: 7 Data Type String
- C. Value: 7

- D. Value: 4
