Cisco Implementing and Operating Cisco Collaboration Core Technologies Sample Questions (Q140-Q145):

NEW QUESTION # 140

How does an administrator ensure compliance with ITU-T G.114 latency requirements when deploying voice and video applications over routes that include a geostationary satellite?

- A. The satellite is 35,786 km (22,236 miles) above sea level (from the equator), so an engineer will not get below 150 ms latency in one direction and will need to manage the expectation of the user.
- B. Using G.729 voice codec instead of G.711 voice codec will reduce the packet size and the latency to stay within the recommended threshold.
- C. The application will work because it will be below the recommended latency requirement. If an engineer uses compressed headers to speed up the voice packets.
- D. For voice and video applications over satellite, Cisco recommends using WAN optimization compression, which will save space or time of the transmission. The latency will then be below the recommended latency threshold for voice.
