ISTQB Certified Tester - Performance Testing Sample Questions (Q34-Q39):

NEW QUESTION # 34
Which of the following is a key reason to include ramp-up and ramp-down periods in a performance test?

- A. To simulate a more realistic user load pattern and avoid sudden system stress
- B. To ensure virtual users complete their transactions within a defined time window
- C. To provide a buffer for slow-performing transactions to complete
- D. To guarantee that all virtual users remain active throughout the test duration

Answer: A

Explanation:
A ramp-up period in a performance test gradually increases load over time, and a ramp-down period does the opposite. This prevents sudden surges in system load, making test results more realistic.
Option A (Ensuring transactions complete in a time window) is incorrect because ramp-up/down periods do not control transaction timing.
Option C (Providing a buffer for slow transactions) is incorrect because ramp-up/down is about load balancing, not transaction timing.
Option D (Keeping all virtual users active throughout the test) is incorrect because ramp-down periods reduce users gradually.

NEW QUESTION # 35
Which of the following is considered a common web service protocol?

- A. HTTP
- B. REST
- C. RTE
- D. SOAK

Answer: B

Explanation:
REST (Representational State Transfer) is a widely used web service protocol that enables client-server communication over HTTP.
It is commonly used in modern APIs and web applications for performance testing.
Option A (SOAK) refers to soak testing, which evaluates performance over an extended period.
Option C (HTTP) is a transport protocol, but REST is the actual web service architecture built on HTTP.
Option D (RTE) is not a web service protocol but may refer to Real-Time Enterprise systems.

NEW QUESTION # 36
Which of the following is the most economical solution to minimize costs and time for performance testing for a high-end production client-server platform?

- A. Mainframe environment
- B. Isolated lab environment
- C. Cloud-based environment
- D. No environment

Answer: C

Explanation:
A cloud-based environment is the most cost-effective solution for performance testing. It offers scalability, pay-per-use models, and flexibility, allowing testers to simulate large workloads without expensive infrastructure investments.
Option A (Isolated lab environment) is costly due to hardware maintenance and infrastructure costs.
Option C (Mainframe environment) is expensive and impractical for performance testing.
Option D (No environment) is not a viable option.

NEW QUESTION # 37
During which of the principal performance testing activities are the building blocks for larger, more complex tests created?

- A. During test design
- B. During test planning
- C. During test completion
- D. During test implementation

Answer: D

Explanation:
Test implementation is the stage where smaller test components are created and assembled into larger test scenarios. This phase includes scripting, test data preparation, and configuring load profiles.

Option A (Test completion) involves analyzing results, not building tests.
Option B (Test planning) focuses on strategies and objectives, not test creation.
Option C (Test design) defines test scenarios and cases, but the actual building happens in implementation.

NEW QUESTION # 38
What is the primary purpose of a load generator?

- A. Simulate user behavior in accordance with the defined operational profile
- B. Record and analyze the behavior of the system as it is executing the prescribed tests
- C. Support root cause analysis when performance degradation is encountered
- D. Create a steady and consistent background load on the system

Answer: A

Explanation:
A load generator is responsible for simulating virtual users and applying workloads to a system as defined by an operational profile.
This allows testers to analyze how the system behaves under different load conditions.
Option A (Background load) is incorrect because load generators create simulated user interactions, not just background noise.
Option C (Record and analyze behavior) is the role of monitoring tools, not a load generator.
Option D (Support root cause analysis) is incorrect because root cause analysis is done after the load test, using monitoring tools.
