NEW QUESTION # 27

Many modern vehicles incorporate technologies that increase the convenience of drivers, but collect information about driver behavior in order to implement this. What should vehicle manufacturers prioritize to ensure enhanced privacy protection for drivers?

- A. Derive implicit consent for the processing of sensitive data by the continued use of the vehicle.
- B. Obtain affirmative consent for processing of sensitive data about the driver.
- C. Share the sensitive data collected about driver behavior with the driver.
- D. Provide easy to read, in-vehicle instructions about how to use the technology.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Vehicle manufacturers should prioritize obtaining affirmative consent for processing sensitive data about the driver to ensure enhanced privacy protection. Affirmative consent, often referred to as explicit consent, involves a clear and unambiguous action by the user agreeing to the processing of their personal data. This is particularly important for sensitive data, which includes information about driver behavior, as it requires a higher level of protection and user awareness. NEW QUESTION # 28

Which of the following is a key element typically examined during an IT control review with a focus on privacy?

- A. Encryption algorithm selection that is used to safeguard PH.
- B. Rules and processes for accessing, modifying, and disposing of PH.
- C. Physical security measures in place to protect hardware storing PH.
- D. Uptime and availability of DPIA platform.

Answer: B

Explanation:

CIPT's guidance for privacy-focused IT control reviews emphasizes evaluating:

Policies and processes governing access, modification, retention, and disposal of personal data.

This includes verifying:

* Role-based access

- * Data lifecycle policies
- * Deletion/retention practices
- * Data handling workflows
- * Evidence logs of data modification
- * Disposal and sanitization processes

This aligns with ISO/IEC 27001 controls, NIST SP 800-53 (Access Control, Audit, Media Sanitization), and privacy governance modules.

Why the others do not match the scope:

- * A - Encryption algorithm selection: Security control review, but not the main privacy control focus.
- * B - Physical security: Important but broader IT security, not privacy-specific.
- * D - DPIA uptime: Not a privacy control at all.

Correct answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 29

A computer user navigates to a page on the Internet. The privacy notice pops up and the user clicks the box to accept cookies, then continues to scroll the page to read the Information displayed. This is an example of which type of consent?

- A. Specific
- B. Explicit.
- C. Implicit.
- D. Valid.

Answer: C

Explanation:

The scenario where a user clicks to accept cookies and then continues to scroll the page is an example of implicit consent. Implicit consent refers to consent that is inferred from a user's actions rather than explicitly stated. In this case, the user's action of clicking to accept cookies and continuing to use the site implies their agreement to the terms outlined in the privacy notice. (Reference: IAPP CIPT Study Guide, Chapter on Consent Mechanisms)

NEW QUESTION # 30

When should code audits be concluded?

- A. Before launch after all code for a feature is complete.
- B. While code is being sent to production.
- C. At code check-in time.
- D. At engineering design time.

Answer: A
