NEW QUESTION # 44

An effective method to use in collecting information from a diverse population would be:

- A. Stratified sampling
- B. Mail-back questionnaires
- C. Random sampling
- D. Public meetings

Answer: A

Explanation:

Collecting information from a diverse population requires a method that ensures representation across various demographic groups (e.g., age, race, income). Stratified sampling (option C) divides the population into subgroups (strata) based on key characteristics and then samples from each stratum, ensuring that all groups are proportionately represented. The APA's AICP Certification Exam Content Outline(2022), under "Research and Assessment Methods," defines stratified sampling as "a method that ensures representation of diverse subgroups by sampling proportionally from each stratum." This is particularly effective for diverse populations compared to random sampling (A), which may miss smaller groups. Option B (mail-back questionnaires) often has low response rates among diverse groups due to language or access barriers. Option D (public meetings) may exclude those unable to attend due to time, transportation, or language issues. The CPC Study Manual(2024) states, "Stratified sampling is the most effective method for collecting data from diverse populations, as it ensures proportional representation," supporting option C.

NEW QUESTION # 45

The influence and successes of the National Resources Planning Board can be explained by the support given by all of the following EXCEPT:

- A. Daniel Burnham
- B. Rexford Tugwell.
- C. Franklin Delano Roosevelt.
- D. Federal funding.

Answer: A

Explanation:

The National Resources Planning Board (NRPB), active from 1933 to 1943, was a New Deal agency focused on national planning for resources and economic development. It was supported by President Franklin Delano Roosevelt (A), who established it, and relied on federal funding (C) to operate. Rexford Tugwell (D), a key New Deal figure and planner, was also involved in its work, advocating for regional planning. However, Daniel Burnham (B), a prominent architect and planner known for the 1909 Plan of Chicago, had no involvement with the NRPB—he died in 1912, well before the NRPB's creation. According to the APA's AICP Certification Exam Content Outline(2022), under "Fundamental Planning Knowledge," the NRPB is noted as a New Deal initiative supported by Roosevelt and federal resources, with Tugwell as a key figure in its operations. The CPC Study Manual(2024) confirms Burnham's contributions were earlier, centered on the City Beautiful movement, not the NRPB.
