NEW QUESTION # 21
Your project uses a piece of equipment that if the temperature of the machine goes above 450 degree Fahrenheit the machine will overheat and have to be shut down for 48 hours. Should this machine overheat even once it will delay the project's end date. You work with your project to create a response that should the temperature of the machine reach 430, the machine will be paused for at least an hour to cool it down. The temperature of 430 is called what?

- A. Risk trigger
- B. Risk identification
- C. Risk event
- D. Risk response

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 22
A project manager is working on a high priority and high profile project. The project team had identified three opportunities, and after analysis, risk responses were recorded. Although risk responses were adequate for the identified opportunities, two of those opportunities were not acted upon. During the risk audit, the project manager found out that several of the planned risk responses were not implemented.
What should the project manager have done to avoid this?

- A. Determined risk triggers and thresholds in the risk response plan
- B. Updated the project schedule, adding risk owner implementation tasks.
- C. Provided regular training to the risk owners for plan implementation
- D. Increased communications to influence stakeholder risk responses

Answer: B

Explanation:
The project manager should have updated the project schedule by adding risk owner implementation tasks.
This would have ensured that the planned risk responses were implemented in a timely manner and tracked as part of the project schedule. This would also have allowed the project manager to monitor the progress of risk response implementation and take corrective action if necessary.
According to the PMI-RMP Exam Content Outline and Specifications1, one of the tasks under Domain 4:
Risk Monitoring and Reporting is to "update project schedule, budget, and risk register with risk response outcomes". This implies that the project manager should have added the risk owner implementation tasks to the project schedule, so that they can be tracked and monitored. By doing so, the project manager could have ensured that the planned risk responses were executed as intended, and that the opportunities were not missed. You work as a project manager for BlueWell Inc. You are working with Nancy, the COO of your company, on several risks within the project. Nancy understands that through qualitative analysis you have identified

80 risks that have a low probability and low impact as the project is currently planned. Nancy's concern, however, is that the impact and probability of these risk events may change as conditions within the project may change. She would like to know where will you document and record these 80 risks that have low probability and low impact for future reference. What should you tell Nancy?

- A. Risks with low probability and low impact are recorded in a watchlist for future monitoring.
- B. All risks, regardless of their assessed impact and probability, are recorded in the risk log.
- C. Risk identification is an iterative process so any changes to the low probability and low impact risks will be reassessed throughout the project life cycle.
- D. All risks are recorded in the risk management plan.

Answer: A
