NEW QUESTION # 178

A university uses the Education Data Architecture (EDA) to manage its prospective and current students. The student Contact Mailing Address fields and records are populated in Salesforce through an integration with an external system. What should the consultant recommend?

- A. Disable address-related Trigger Handler records.
- B. Set the Default Account Model to Administrative.
- C. Disable all EDA and custom Trigger Handler records.
- D. Set record-level trigger firing based on the Account record type.

Answer: A

Explanation:

The consultant should recommend to disable address-related Trigger Handler records for the university that uses EDA to manage its prospective and current students and has the student Contact Mailing Address fields and records populated in Salesforce through an integration with an external system. Trigger Handler records are records that control the behavior of EDA triggers and can be disabled or enabled as needed. Disabling address-related Trigger Handler records can help prevent duplicate or conflicting address records from being created or updated by EDA when the student Contact Mailing Address fields and records are populated in Salesforce through an integration with an external system. Disabling all EDA and custom Trigger Handler records, setting record-level trigger firing based on the Account record type, or setting the Default Account Model to Administrative are not recommendations for the university that uses EDA to manage its prospective and current students and has the student Contact Mailing Address fields and records populated in Salesforce through an integration with an external system. NEW QUESTION # 181

A system admin plans to load data into Salesforce in the following order. Team, Course, Course offering, and Account.

What should the consultant discuss with the system admin?

- A. There is a risk of account data skew.
- B. There is a risk of lookup data skew.
- C. Account is a required field for Team

Answer: B

Explanation:

There is a risk of lookup data skew when loading data into Salesforce in the order of Team, Course, Course Offering, and Account, because the Team object has a lookup relationship to the Account object, and many Team records may reference the same Account record. This can cause performance issues when querying or updating the data. Account is not a required field for Team, and there is no risk of account data skew, which occurs when a single user owns a large number of Account records. Reference:
