Appian Associate Developer Sample Questions (Q31-Q36):

NEW QUESTION # 31

You created an expression rule that was deployed to production on January 12, 2022.

The object has "form type" as a rule input, as well as several other rule inputs for characteristics describing the logged in user. Given values for these inputs, the rule returns a set of form instructions for the specified type of form as applicable to the logged in user.

What is the most important action to take with regards to the object description?

- A. Save a rule input of type 'text' for the object called 'objectDescription', and set a text value that generally describes the object such that other developers could quickly gain understanding of the object's purpose.
- B. Set an object description that reads: "Returns a set of form instructions to display, given the type of form and characteristics of the logged in user".
- C. Set an object description that includes any notes you may need if you were to become responsible for providing Production Support on that area of the application in the future. You should also include "BP - 1/12/2022 - Created" somewhere in the description.

Answer: B

Which two scenarios are ideal for using Appian Portals? (Choose two.)

- A. A user needs to submit support requests when they are using their mobile device in areas with bad network coverage.
- B. A retail customer wants to conduct a public survey for their recently launched product.
- C. An employee who does not have an account wants to register for their company's vehicle fleet a management system.
- D. A manager wants to obtain a view of their team's performance.

Answer: B,C

Explanation:

Appian Portals are designed for scenarios where users who do not have an Appian account need to interact with Appian applications. This makes them ideal for public-facing applications such as surveys (Option B) or for allowing external users to initiate processes like registrations (Option C). They are not intended for internal use by employees (Option A) or for scenarios requiring offline capabilities (Option D).
