IIA Qualified Info Systems Auditor CIA Challenge Exam Sample Questions (Q13-Q18):

NEW QUESTION # 13

A bicycle manufacturer incurs a combination of fixed and variable costs with the production of each bicycle. Which of the following statements is true regarding these costs?

- A. if the number of bicycles produced is increased by 15 percent, the variable cost per unit will increase proportionally
- B. The total variable cost will vary proportionally and inversely with the number of bicycles produced during a production run.
- C. if the number of bicycles produced is increased by 30 percent, the fixed cost per unit will decline.
- D. The fixed cost per unit will vary directly based on the number of bicycles produced during the production cycle.

Answer: C

Explanation:

* Introduction:

* Understanding cost behavior is crucial in managing production and financial performance in manufacturing.

* Cost Characteristics:

* Fixed costs remain constant in total but vary per unit with changes in production volume.

* Variable costs vary directly with production volume but remain constant per unit.

* Options Analysis:

* Option A: Variable costs per unit remain constant regardless of production volume.

* Option B: Fixed costs per unit decrease as production volume increases, not directly.

* Option C: Total variable costs vary directly with production volume, not inversely.

* Option D: Fixed costs per unit will decline as the number of units produced increases due to the spreading of fixed costs over a larger number of units.

* Conclusion:

* When production increases by 30%, the fixed cost per unit will decline as the same total fixed cost is allocated over a greater number of units.

NEW QUESTION # 14

Applying ISO 31000; which of the following is part of the external context for risk management?

- A. Organizational culture, objectives, and processes.
- B. The method of determining the risk level
- C. Risk treatment method based on risk evaluation.
- D. The regulatory and competitive environment.

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 15

What would be the effect if an organization paid one of its liabilities twice during the year, in error?

- A. Assets and liabilities would be understated.
- B. Assets, net income, and owners' equity would be understated, but liabilities would be overstated
- C. Assets, net income, and owners' equity would be unaffected
- D. Assets, liabilities, and owners' equity would be understated.

Answer: B

Explanation:

If an organization pays one of its liabilities twice, its assets (cash) would be reduced more than necessary. This results in an understatement of net income and owners' equity because the additional payment is an expense that should not have been recorded. Liabilities would be overstated because the duplicate payment does not reduce the liability correctly.

References:

* "Financial Accounting Principles," which discusses the impact of errors on financial statements.

NEW QUESTION # 16

Which of the following is true of matrix organizations?

- A. Authority, responsibility, and accountability of the units involved may vary based on the projects life, or the organization's culture.
- B. A unity-of-command concept requires employees to report technically, functionally, and administratively to the same manager.
- C. It is best suited for firms with scattered locations or for multi-line, large-scale firms.
- D. A combination of product and functional departments allows management to utilize personnel from various functions.

Answer: D

Explanation:

* Matrix Organization Structure: In matrix organizations, employees report to both functional and product managers. This dual reporting structure allows the organization to efficiently use its personnel across different projects and functions.

* Advantages of Matrix Structure:

* Resource Utilization: Personnel from various functions can be utilized effectively across multiple projects, improving resource allocation and flexibility.

* Coordination and Communication: This structure enhances coordination and communication across different functional areas and projects.

* Unity-of-Command: Option A is incorrect because the unity-of-command principle is compromised in a matrix organization due to dual reporting lines.

* Authority and Accountability: Option C is correct to some extent but does not capture the primary benefit of resource utilization.

* Suitability: Option D refers to the best use cases for matrix structures, but option B provides a more comprehensive understanding of how matrix organizations function.

NEW QUESTION # 17

An investor has acquired an organization that has a dominant position in a mature, slow-growth industry and consistently creates positive financial income. Which of the following terms would the investor most likely label this investment in her portfolio?

- A. A star.
- B. A question mark.

- C. A dog
- D. A cash cow.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Investment Portfolio Terms:

- * Cash Cow: A business unit with a dominant market position in a mature, slow-growth industry that generates consistent positive cash flow and profits. It requires little investment to maintain its market position and provides funds for other investments.
- * Star: A business unit with a high market share in a fast-growing industry. It requires significant investment to maintain its position and support further growth.
- * Question Mark: A business unit with a low market share in a high-growth industry. It requires substantial investment to increase market share.
- * Dog: A business unit with a low market share in a slow-growth industry, generating minimal profit or loss.

Characteristics of a Cash Cow:

- * Dominant Position: The acquired organization has a strong market position.
- * Mature Industry: The industry is mature with slow growth.
- * Positive Financial Income: Consistently generates positive cash flow and profits, requiring minimal investment.

Investment Strategy:

- * Portfolio Management: Investors typically use cash cows to fund other investments, maintaining a balanced portfolio that supports growth while providing stable returns.

References:

- * The term "cash cow" accurately describes an organization with a dominant position in a mature, slow-growth industry that consistently generates positive financial income, fitting the investor's description.
