NEW QUESTION # 45

Which two benefits does the Search and Reporting Service offer over embedded Elasticsearch? (Choose Two)

- A. Improved row-level security.
- B. Independent release cycles for Pega Platform updates.
- C. Helps in connecting with any full-text search engines.
- D. Eliminates issues with potential loss of data indices when Util nodes crash.

Answer: B,D

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation From Exact Extract:

Pega's Search and Reporting Service (SRS), as described in Pega Academy's Lead System Architect Mission and the Pega Certified Lead System Architect Study Guide, is a managed cloud service that replaces embedded Elasticsearch for full-text search, offering improved reliability and flexibility.

* Option A (Correct): SRS eliminates issues with data index loss when Util nodes crash, as it is a managed service with built-in redundancy and fault tolerance, unlike embedded Elasticsearch, which relies on local nodes. This is documented in the Search and Reporting Service section of Pega Community.

* Option B (Incorrect): Row-level security is managed by Pega's access control mechanisms, not by SRS or embedded Elasticsearch. SRS focuses on search functionality, per the Security Design module.

* Option C (Correct): SRS operates on independent release cycles from the Pega Platform, allowing updates without impacting core application functionality. This contrasts with embedded Elasticsearch, which is tightly coupled, as noted in the SRS Architecture guidelines.

* Option D (Incorrect): SRS is a specific Pega-managed service, not a generic connector for any full-text search engine. It replaces embedded Elasticsearch but does not support arbitrary engines, per the Search Configuration module.

Pega Academy: Lead System Architect Mission (covers Search and Reporting Service).

Pega Community: Search and Reporting Service (details on benefits over Elasticsearch).

Pega Certified Lead System Architect Study Guide (v23): Section on Pega Platform Architecture (emphasizes SRS advantages).
