NEW QUESTION # 87

When should an administrator apply a permission set to a user or group of users versus configuring the user's profile with the necessary access?

- A. When an organization has opted out of using the standard profiles and created custom profiles.
- B. When an organization's sharing model is too broad and they need to restrict access beyond what their sharing model and existing profiles provide.
- C. When a user is part of a team with an assigned profile that covers the majority of their needs but requires just a little less access than the rest of their team.

- D. When a user is part of a team with an assigned profile that covers the majority of their needs but requires more access than the rest of their team.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Explanation

As explained in question 13, permission sets are collections of settings and permissions that give users access to various tools and functions without changing their profile or requiring multiple profiles for users who perform different tasks across apps in your org. Permission sets are useful when a user is part of a team with an assigned profile that covers the majority of their needs but requires more access than the rest of their team for some specific tasks or functions. For example, a user may need access to a custom object or field that is not available to their profile, but only for a limited time or project. In this case, assigning a permission set to the user can grant them the additional access they need without affecting their profile or other users with the same profile. NEW QUESTION # 91

The VP of sales at AW Computing utilizes a Lead report grouped by Country and Lead Source to show where the leads are coming from. The number of leads varies greatly for each Country.

What should the administrator configure on the report to show the Lead Source effectiveness for each country?

- A. PREVGROUPVAL function
- B. The 'Show Unique Count'
- C. Bucket fitters
- D. PARENTGROUPVAL Function

Answer: D

Explanation:

Explanation

The PARENTGROUPVAL function is a formula function that returns the value of a parent group in a report.

It can be used to compare values across different groupings and show relative performance. In this case, the administrator can use this function to show the lead source effectiveness for each country by calculating the percentage of leads from each lead source divided by the total number of leads for each country.
