Psychiatric Rehabilitation Association Certified Psychiatric Rehabilitation Practitioner Sample Questions (Q55-Q60):

NEW QUESTION # 55

Wellness Recovery Action Plan (WRAP) is most useful for which of the following?

- A. Providing tools to handle stress.
- B. Adapting 12-step programs to address symptoms.
- C. Replacing advance directives.
- D. Increasing adherence to treatment.

Answer: A

Explanation:

The Wellness Recovery Action Plan (WRAP), developed by Mary Ellen Copeland, is a self-directed, recovery-oriented framework that empowers individuals to manage their mental health and wellness. The CPRP Exam Blueprint (Domain V: Strategies for Facilitating Recovery) highlights WRAP as a tool for developing self-management skills, particularly for managing stress and preventing crises (Task V.B.2):

"Facilitate the development of self-management skills"). Option B (providing tools to handle stress) aligns with WRAP's core components, which include identifying triggers, creating a wellness toolkit (e.g., coping strategies like mindfulness or exercise), and developing action plans to manage stress and symptoms effectively.

Option A (adapting 12-step programs) is incorrect, as WRAP is a distinct, personalized recovery model, not an adaptation of 12-step programs, which focus on addiction recovery. Option C (increasing adherence to treatment) may be an indirect benefit but is not WRAP's primary purpose, which emphasizes self-empowerment over compliance. Option D (replacing advance directives) is incorrect, as WRAP complements, but does not replace, legal documents like advance directives, which are addressed separately (Task V.C.3).

The PRA Study Guide emphasizes WRAP's role in fostering resilience and stress management, supporting Option B.

NEW QUESTION # 56

When teaching a skill, role playing should usually be done after

- A. practicing the skill.
- B. modeling the skill.
- C. trying the skill for the first time.
- D. describing how to do the skill.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Teaching skills in psychiatric rehabilitation follows a structured, evidence-based process to ensure effective learning. The CPRP Exam Blueprint (Domain V: Strategies for Facilitating Recovery) outlines skill teaching as a multi-step process that includes modeling, role-playing, and practice (Task V.B.4: "Teach skills using evidence-based methods"). The standard sequence is to first describe the skill, then model it (demonstrate how it is performed), followed by role-playing (where the individual practices in a simulated setting), and finally real-world practice. Option A (modeling the skill) aligns with this, as role-playing typically follows modeling to allow the individual to observe the skill in action before attempting it themselves in a controlled, supportive environment. Option B (practicing the skill) refers to real-world application, which comes after role-playing. Option C (trying the skill for the first time) is vague but implies initial practice, which role-playing itself facilitates.

Option D (describing how to do the skill) precedes modeling, as description alone is insufficient before demonstration. The PRA Study Guide, referencing skill-teaching models like the Boston University Psychiatric Rehabilitation approach, confirms that role-playing follows modeling, supporting Option A.

NEW QUESTION # 57

An important first step for a director of a rehabilitation program, who wants to create a positive vision for change, is to focus on

- A. eliminating unwanted behaviors.
- B. supporting desired behaviors.
- C. articulating their own values.
- D. planning to eliminate barriers.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Creating a positive vision for change in a rehabilitation program requires leadership that inspires and aligns stakeholders. The CPRP Exam Blueprint (Domain VI: Systems Competencies) emphasizes that program directors should first articulate their values to establish a recovery-oriented culture and guide organizational change (Task VI.A.1: "Promote a recovery-oriented vision within systems"). Option B (articulating their own values) aligns with this, as clearly defining values like empowerment, inclusion, and hope sets the tone for the program's mission, influencing policies, staff training, and service delivery.

Option A (supporting desired behaviors) is a strategy, not the first step. Option C (eliminating unwanted behaviors) is negative and less visionary. Option D (planning to eliminate barriers) follows vision-setting. The PRA Study Guide highlights value articulation as the foundation for program vision, supporting Option B.

NEW QUESTION # 58

Which of the following would most affect the ability of an individual with schizophrenia to communicate?

- A. Disorganized thoughts
- B. Lack of motivation
- C. Flat affect
- D. Anhedonia

Answer: A

Explanation:

This question pertains to Domain I: Interpersonal Competencies, which includes understanding how mental health conditions, such as schizophrenia, impact communication and how practitioners can adapt their approach to facilitate effective interactions. The CPRP Exam Blueprint notes that practitioners must "understand the impact of psychiatric symptoms on communication and employ strategies to support effective interpersonal interactions." Schizophrenia is characterized by symptoms such as disorganized thoughts, hallucinations, delusions, negative symptoms (e.g., flat affect, anhedonia), and motivational challenges. The question asks which symptom most directly affects communication ability.

* Option A: Disorganized thoughts, a positive symptom of schizophrenia, significantly impair communication by causing incoherent speech, difficulty staying on topic, and challenges in organizing ideas. This directly disrupts the ability to convey thoughts clearly, making it the most impactful symptom on communication.

* Option B: Anhedonia, the inability to experience pleasure, is a negative symptom that affects emotional engagement but does not directly impair the cognitive or verbal processes required for communication.

* Option C: Flat affect, another negative symptom, refers to reduced emotional expressiveness, which may make communication appear less engaging but does not fundamentally disrupt the ability to convey thoughts or ideas.

* Option D: Lack of motivation, also a negative symptom, may reduce an individual's willingness to engage in communication but does not directly affect their ability to communicate when they choose to do so.

Extract from CPRP Exam Blueprint (Domain I: Interpersonal Competencies):

"Tasks include: 3. Understanding the impact of psychiatric conditions and symptoms on communication and behavior. 4. Adapting communication strategies to meet the needs of individuals with psychiatric disabilities."

NEW QUESTION # 59

The true mission of psychiatric rehabilitation is to improve functioning and

- A. decrease stigma.
- B. decrease symptoms.
- C. increase insight.
- D. increase satisfaction.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Psychiatric rehabilitation focuses on enhancing an individual's ability to live, work, and engage in the community while achieving personal fulfillment. The CPRP Exam Blueprint (Domain V: Strategies for Facilitating Recovery) defines the mission as improving functioning (e.g., skills for daily living, employment) and increasing satisfaction with life roles and environments (Task V.A.1: "Promote recovery principles, including self-determination and satisfaction"). Option A (increase satisfaction) aligns with this, as psychiatric rehabilitation prioritizes person-centered outcomes, such as achieving goals that enhance quality of life and personal fulfillment, alongside functional improvements.

Option B (decrease symptoms) is a clinical goal, not the primary focus of rehabilitation, which emphasizes functioning over symptom reduction. Option C (increase insight) is not a core rehabilitation outcome, as insight is secondary to practical and personal goals. Option D (decrease stigma) is a broader advocacy goal (Domain VI) but not the mission's core focus. The PRA Study Guide defines psychiatric rehabilitation as improving functioning and life satisfaction, supporting Option A.
