NEW QUESTION # 272
Which of the following commands replaces each occurrence of 'bob' in the file letter with 'Bob' and writes the result to the file newletter?

- A. sed 's/bob/Bob/g' letter > newletter
- B. sed 's/bob, Bob/' letter > newletter
- C. sed s/bob/Bob/ letter < newletter
- D. sed '/bob/Bob' letter > newletter
- E. sed's/bob/Bob' letter > newletter

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 273
Which of the following apt-get commands will install the newest versions of all currently installed packages?

- A. dist-upgrade
- B. update
- C. full-upgrade
- D. install
- E. auto-update

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 274
Which chown command will change the ownership to dave and the group to staff on a file named data.txt?

- A. chown dave:staff data.txt
- B. chown --user dave --group staff data.txt
- C. chown dave/staff data.txt
- D. chown -u dave -g staff data.txt

Answer: A

Explanation:
Explanation
The chown command is used to change the owner and group of files and directories in Linux. The basic syntax of the chown command is:
chown [options] user[:group] file...
The user is the name or the numeric ID of the new owner of the file. The group is the name or the numeric ID of the new group of the file. The file is the name or the path of the file or directory to be changed. The user and group are separated by a colon (:), not a slash (/). The group is optional, and if it is omitted, the group will not be changed. The options are optional, and they can modify the behavior of the chown command, such as changing the ownership recursively, silently, or verbosely.
In this question, the user is dave and the group is staff. The file is data.txt. Therefore, the correct command to change the ownership to dave and the group to staff on data.txt is:
chown dave:staff data.txt
This command will change the owner of data.txt to dave and the group of data.txt to staff. You can verify the changes by using the ls -l command to view the owner and group of data.txt.
The other options are not correct because:
* A. chown dave/staff data.txt: This command is not valid because it uses a slash (/) instead of a colon (:) to separate the user and group. The slash (/) is used to separate the directories in a path, not the user and group in the chown command. If you run this command, you will get an error message saying:

chown: invalid user: 'dave/staff'
* B. chown -u dave -g staff data.txt: This command is not valid because it uses the -u and -g options, which do not exist in the chown command. The -u and -g options are used in the chgrp command, which is used to change only the group of files and directories, not the owner. The chown command does not have the -u and -g options, and it uses the user[:group] argument to specify the new owner and group. If you run this command, you will get an error message saying:
chown: invalid option - 'u' Try 'chown --help' for more information.
* C. chown --user dave --group staff data.txt: This command is not valid because it uses the --user and --group options, which do not exist in the chown command. The --user and --group options are used in the usermod command, which is used to modify the user account information, not the file ownership.
The chown command does not have the --user and --group options, and it uses the user[:group] argument to specify the new owner and group. If you run this command, you will get an error message saying:
chown: unrecognized option '-user' Try 'chown --help' for more information.

NEW QUESTION # 275
When running the command
sed -e "s/a/b/" /tmp/file >/tmp/file
While /tmp/file contains data, why is /tmp/file empty afterwards?

- A. The file order is incorrect. The destination file must be mentioned before the command to ensure redirection.
- B. When the shell establishes the redirection it overwrites the target file before the redirected command starts and opens itfor reading.
- C. The command sed did not match anything in that file therefore the output is empty.
- D. Redirection for shell commands do not work using the > character. It only works using the | character instead.

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 276
In compliance with the FHS, in which of the directories are man pages found?

- A. /var/man
- B. /usr/share/man
- C. /opt/man
- D. /var/pkg/man
- E. /usr/doc/

Answer: B

Explanation:
According to the Filesystem Hierarchy Standard (FHS), the directory /usr/share/man contains manual pages for user commands, system calls, library functions, and other documentation1. The other directories are either non-standard, deprecated, or used for different purposes. For example, /opt/man is used for manual pages for add-on application software packages1, /usr/doc/ is an old location for documentation files that is no longer used2, /var/pkg/man and /var/man are not defined by the FHS.
