NEW QUESTION # 196
Which practice is allowed when it comes to naming a Lightning web component's folder and associated files?

- A. Including whitespace
- B. Using a single underscore
- C. Using consecutive underscores
- D. Using a single hyphen (dash)

Answer: B

Explanation:
To name a Lightning web component's folder and associated files, the developer should follow these naming rules:
Must begin with a lowercase letter
Must contain only alphanumeric or underscore characters
Must be unique in the namespace
Can't include whitespace
Can't end with an underscore
Can't contain two consecutive underscores
Can't contain a hyphen (dash)
The only exception to the last rule is when separating the namespace from the component name in markup. For example, if the component is in the example namespace and has the name myComponent, the folder name should be myComponent, but the markup tag should be <example-my-component>. The hyphen character (-) is required by the HTML standard for custom element names. The other options are either invalid or not recommended. For example, including whitespace or using consecutive underscores will cause errors, and using a single underscore will look odd and may confuse developers consuming the component.B2B Commerce and D2C Commerce Developer Guide,Lightning Web Components Developer Guide

NEW QUESTION # 197
A developer is trying to integrate a new shipping provider to use during checkout in a storefront Which two steps must the developer take to make an integration available for selection?

- A. Modify the StoreIntegratedService to map to an Apex class ID using Workbench.
- B. Create a RegisteredExternalService record using Workbench.
- C. Create an Apex class that uses the integration framework.
- D. Enter the integration class name and version in the store administration.

Answer: B,C

Explanation:
To make an integration available for selection, a developer must create a RegisteredExternalService record using Workbench and create an Apex class that uses the integration framework. Creating a RegisteredExternalService record using Workbench allows the developer to register their custom integration class as an external service in Salesforce B2B Commerce. The RegisteredExternalService record contains information such as the class name, version, display name, description, and category of the integration class. The category determines where and how the integration class can be used in B2B Commerce, such as ShippingService or TaxService. Creating an Apex class that uses the integration framework allows the developer to define custom logic for integrating with an external service provider's API or service. The integration framework provides interfaces and classes for various types of integrations, such as shipping, tax, payment, inventory, and freight. The developer can implement these interfaces and classes in their custom Apex class and override their methods with their own logic. Modifying the StoreIntegratedService to map to an Apex class ID using Workbench is not a required step for making an integration available for selection, as it is only used for registering internal services that are provided by Salesforce B2B Commerce out-of-the-box. Entering the integration class name and version in store administration is not a required step either, as it is only used for selecting an existing integration class that has already been registered as an external service. NEW QUESTION # 198

Which three data types are supported for custom fields while using CSV file format for importing data for a store?

- A. Picklist (Multi-Select)
- B. Lookup Relationship
- C. Currency
- D. Address
- E. Text Area(Long)

Answer: B,C,E

Explanation:
Three data types that are supported for custom fields while using CSV file format for importing data for a store are Text Area(Long), Lookup Relationship, and Currency. A custom field is a field that is added by a developer or an administrator to an object to store additional information or data. A data type is a property that defines the type, format, and validation rules of a field. A CSV file is a file format that stores tabular data in plain text using commas to separate values. A store is a record that represents a B2B or B2C storefront in Salesforce. Text Area(Long) is a data type that allows users to enter up to 131,072 characters on separate lines. Text Area(Long) is supported for custom fields while using CSV file format for importing data for a store. Lookup Relationship is a data type that allows users to create a relationship between two objects and select a value from another record. Lookup Relationship is supported for custom fields while using CSV file format for importing data for a store. Currency is a data type that allows users to enter currency values and automatically convert them based on the user's locale and currency settings. Currency is supported for custom fields while using CSV file format for importing data for a store. Picklist (Multi-Select) is a data type that allows users to select one or more values from a predefined list of values. Picklist (Multi-Select) is not supported for custom fields while using CSV file format for importing data for a store. Address is a data type that allows users to enter address values and automatically format them based on the user's locale settings. Address is not supported for custom fields while using CSV file format for importing data for a store. NEW QUESTION # 199

What are two advantages of using Lightning Data Service?

- A. Communicates with other components
- B. Converts between different data formats
- C. Loads record data progressively
- D. Combines and de-duplicates server calls

Answer: C,D

Explanation:
Two advantages of using Lightning Data Service are that it combines and de-duplicates server calls and that it loads record data progressively. Lightning Data Service is a service that provides access to Salesforce data and metadata in Lightning web components. It optimizes performance and minimizes server round trips by caching data on the client side and sharing data across components. It also combines and de-duplicates server calls by batching requests for the same record or object and returning a single response. It also loads record data progressively by returning available cached data first and then fetching updated data from the server asynchronously. Communicating with other components and converting between different data formats are not advantages of using Lightning Data Service, as they are not related to its functionality or features.
