NETA Level 2 Certified Assistant Electrical Testing Specialist Sample Questions (Q79-Q84):

NEW QUESTION # 79

On a circuit breaker equipped with a solid-stateLSIGtrip unit, what does the "I"represent?

- A. Insulation
- B. Interrupting rating
- C. Instantaneous
- D. Inverse-time

Answer: C

Explanation:

LSIG stands for Long-time, Short-time, Instantaneous, and Ground-fault protection. TheInstantaneous element provides rapid tripping with no intentional delay for high-magnitude faults. NETA Level 2 technicians must understand trip unit elements when performing injection testing and verifying protective coordination.

NEW QUESTION # 80

How many connection points are typically found on a Kelvin bridge used for low-resistance measurements?

- A. 0
- B. 1
- C. 2
- D. 3

Answer: B

Explanation:

A Kelvin bridge, also known as a four-wire resistance measurement device, uses four connection points to accurately measure very low resistances. These consist of two current terminals and two potential (voltage) terminals.

This configuration eliminates the effects of lead resistance and contact resistance, which can significantly distort measurements when testing bolted connections, bus joints, and grounding conductors. NETA Level 2 technicians routinely use Kelvin methods when performing low-resistance ohmic measurements during acceptance and maintenance testing.

Using fewer than four terminals would result in inaccurate readings, especially at milliohm or micro-ohm levels. Understanding this principle ensures proper test setup and reliable data interpretation.

NEW QUESTION # 81

During a CT saturation test, voltage increases sharply with little increase in current. What does this indicate?

- A. Core has reached saturation
- B. Secondary winding is open
- C. Ratio error is present
- D. CT burden is too low

Answer: A

Explanation:

A sharp rise in voltage with minimal increase in current indicates the CT core has reached magnetic saturation. Beyond this point, the CT cannot accurately reproduce primary current. NETA Level 2 technicians must identify saturation points to ensure CTs are suitable for protection applications and that relay performance will be reliable during high-current faults.

NEW QUESTION # 82

Harmonics in an electrical system increase the risk of fire and electric shock.

- A. False
- B. Only when neutral conductors are undersized
- C. Only in high-voltage systems
- D. True

Answer: D

Explanation:

Harmonics cause increased heating in conductors, transformers, and neutral paths, which can degrade insulation and increase fire risk. They can also create unexpected voltage conditions and elevated touch potentials. NETA Level 2 technicians must recognize harmonic-related risks when evaluating system performance, especially in facilities with nonlinear loads such as VFDs and power electronics.

NEW QUESTION # 83

What is the recommended minimum insulation resistance value for motor windings manufactured before 1970?

- A. 100 megohms
- B. 10 megohms
- C. 1 megohm
- D. 100 megohms per kV plus 1

Answer: D

Explanation:

For older motor windings, NETA guidance recognizes that insulation systems were often less robust than modern designs. The recommended minimum insulation resistance is 100 megohms per kV of rated voltage plus 1 megohm.

This formula provides a baseline for evaluating insulation condition during acceptance or maintenance testing.

NETA Level 2 technicians must not only perform insulation resistance tests correctly, but also interpret results in the context of equipment age, voltage rating, and service conditions. Results below recommended minimums indicate potential moisture, contamination, or insulation degradation requiring corrective action.
