Microsoft GitHub Actions Sample Questions (Q97-Q102):

NEW QUESTION # 97

As a developer, how can you identify a composite action on GitHub?

- A. The action's repository includes an `init.sh` file in the root directory.
- B. The `action.yml` metadata file has the `runs.using` value set to `composite`.
- C. The action's repository includes `Dockerfile` and `package.json` files.
- D. The action's repository name includes the keyword "composite."

Answer: B

Explanation:

`runs.using` for composite actions

Required: You must set this value to 'composite'.

NEW QUESTION # 98

Which default GitHub environment variable indicates the owner and repository name?

- A. `ENV REPOSITORY`
- B. `GITHUB REPOSITORY`
- C. `GITHUB WORKFLOW REPO`
- D. `REPOSITORY NAME`

Answer: D

Explanation:

The `GITHUB_REPOSITORY` environment variable contains the owner and repository name in the format `owner/repository`. It is automatically provided by GitHub Actions and can be used to reference the repository in workflows.

NEW QUESTION # 99

Which GitHub Actions event configuration triggers only for pull requests targeting the release branch and not for push events?

- A. `on: pull_request: types: - opened`
- B. `on: pull_request: branches: - release`

- C. on: pull_request_target: branches: - release
- D. on: push: branches: - release

Answer: B

Explanation:

The correct option is on: pull_request: branches: - release. This configuration runs only when a pull request targets the release branch and it does not run on push events.

The pull_request event triggers on pull request activity and the branches filter matches the base branch of the pull request. By specifying the release branch, this configuration limits runs to pull requests that target that branch. Because it listens only for the pull_request event, pushes will not trigger the workflow.

NEW QUESTION # 100

As a developer, which of the following snippets will enable you to run the commands `npm ci` and `npm run build` as part of a workflow?

- A. - shell:
npm ci
npm run build
- B. - shell: |
npm ci
npm run build
- C. - run:
npm ci
npm run build
- D. - run: |
npm ci
npm run build shell: nodejs
- E. - run: |
npm ci
npm run build

Answer: E

Explanation:

Use the run: keyword only, not the shell keyword.

Use the special character |.

Note: There are two ways to run commands one after another on Github Actions.

NEW QUESTION # 101

As a DevOps engineer, you are trying to leverage an organization secret in a repo. The value received in the workflow is not the same as that set in the secret. What is the most likely reason for the difference?

- A. The Codespace secret doesn't match the expected value.
- B. There is a different value specified at the enterprise level.
- C. The Encrypt Secret setting was not configured for the secret.
- D. There is a different value specified at the workflow level.
- E. There is a different value specified at the repo level.

Answer: E

Explanation:

GitHub secrets are defined at different levels: organization, repository, and sometimes at the workflow level. If a secret is defined at both the organization level and the repository level, the repository-level secret will take precedence. So, if the value of the secret differs between these levels, the workflow will use the value from the repository level instead of the organization level.
