ASET Ethics Examination-ASET Professional Practice Exam (PPE) Sample Questions (Q12-Q17):

NEW QUESTION # 12

A regulated member of ASET is ill and is taking extended sick leave from work. The member is not able to complete any continuing professional development (CPD) activities due to the nature of the illness, but is planning to return to work as soon as possible. Which of the following actions should the member take?

- A. Resign membership with ASET as it is not possible to complete the CPD requirement.
- B. Find a way to complete the mandatory CPD activities regardless of the illness.
- C. Contact ASET to request an exemption to the CPD requirement for the duration of the illness.
- D. No action is required on the part of the member.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Continuing Professional Development (CPD) is a mandatory requirement for regulated members of ASET to ensure they maintain their competency, keep their skills current, and continue to protect the public throughout their careers. However, ASET recognizes that unexpected life events, such as severe illness, parental leave, or periods of prolonged unemployment, can legitimately prevent a member from meeting their annual CPD obligations. In situations involving extended medical leave, it is inappropriate and potentially harmful to the member's well-being to force compliance, nor is it necessary for them to resign their hard-earned professional membership. Instead, the correct professional protocol, as outlined in ASET's practice guidelines, is for the member to proactively contact ASET to request a formal exemption or reduction in their CPD requirements for the duration of their absence from active practice. By officially communicating with the regulatory body, the member maintains their good standing while responsibly managing their professional obligations during a period of personal hardship, ensuring total compliance with the administrative rules of the association.

NEW QUESTION # 13

What is the purpose of Canada's Copyright Act?

- A. To allow unauthorized copying
- B. To allow an individual to duplicate someone's work and pass it off as their own
- C. To allow the owner of a work the exclusive right to copy
- D. To allow an individual to claim credit for work that is not their own

Answer: C

Explanation:

In Canada, Intellectual Property (IP) is protected under various federal statutes. The specific purpose of the Canadian Copyright Act is to protect the original expression of ideas. It legally grants the creator or owner of an original literary, artistic, musical, or dramatic work (which includes engineering drawings, software code, and technical manuals) the sole and exclusive right to produce, reproduce, perform, or publish that work. This legal monopoly prevents others from stealing, unauthorized copying, or financially exploiting the creator's intellectual labor without permission or compensation.

Options A, C, and D describe acts of plagiarism, piracy, and copyright infringement-which are the exact illegal activities the Copyright Act was created to prevent and penalize. For ASET professionals, understanding copyright is crucial both for protecting their own firm's proprietary designs and for ensuring they do not illegally utilize the protected materials of other engineering firms.

NEW QUESTION # 14

Which of the following behaviours justifies a complaint to ASET against a Professional Technologist?

- A. Occasionally being severely late to arrive at work
- B. Providing advice on topics outside of their scope of practice
- C. Being caught sleeping at the desk while on the job
- D. Being vocal at a meeting regarding their specific project's deficiencies

Answer: B

Explanation:

The ASET Code of Ethics firmly requires that members "undertake and accept responsibility for professional assignments only when qualified by training and experience." This is the concept of working strictly within one's "scope of practice." Providing technical advice, designs, or professional opinions on subjects outside of one's specific area of competence is a severe ethical violation and a major safety hazard. If an electrical technologist attempts to provide structural engineering advice, they lack the requisite knowledge, thereby directly endangering the public and exposing themselves to disciplinary action. This behavior entirely justifies a formal complaint to ASET for unskilled practice or unprofessional conduct. Conversely, while being late (Option A) or sleeping at a desk (Option B) are poor employment behaviors that warrant internal HR discipline by the employer, they do not typically constitute regulatory "unprofessional conduct" unless they directly result in a safety hazard. Being vocal about deficiencies (Option C) is actually ethical behavior, as it protects the public.

NEW QUESTION # 15

Why are professional stamps or seals affixed to certain workplace documents?

- A. To indicate that a professional member accepts responsibility for the material
- B. To add a professional member's contact information to the documentation
- C. To copyright the material on behalf of the professional member's employer
- D. To indicate that the documentation has been finalized

Answer: A

Explanation:

The professional stamp or seal is one of the most important legal tools entrusted to regulated members (such as P.Techs or Professional Engineers). It is not merely a bureaucratic "finalized" stamp (Option A), nor is it a mechanism for establishing copyright (Option B) or sharing contact information (Option C). Affixing a professional seal to a document (such as design drawings, specifications, or technical reports) is a legally binding declaration. It signifies to the public, clients, and municipal authorities that a legally qualified professional either personally prepared the work or directly supervised its preparation. More importantly, it serves as a formal guarantee that the professional explicitly accepts full legal and professional responsibility for the accuracy, safety, and code compliance of the contents.

If a sealed design fails and causes injury, the professional who applied the seal is the individual held legally accountable for negligence.

NEW QUESTION # 16

A project is situated inside a forested area. A regulated member of ASET wants to provide a clear pathway for equipment by removing all vegetation and brush within a 1 km radius around the site. This removal was not noted on the maps in the Phase 1 environmental report. Which of the following actions should the member take to address this situation?

- A. Consult with the contractor responsible for the environmental impact assessment before determining a course of action.
- B. Report the contractor responsible for the environmental impact assessment to ASET.
- C. Immediately remove the vegetation and brush.
- D. Advise the equipment operators to drive over the vegetation and brush to get to the project site.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Environmental protection is a paramount duty for ASET members. When working on projects involving natural habitats, all actions must strictly align with the approved Environmental Site Assessments (ESAs) and permits. A Phase 1 ESA outlines the baseline environmental conditions and historical uses of a site. If a proposed construction activity—such as massive, unauthorized deforestation within a 1 km radius—is not explicitly noted and approved in the environmental reports, proceeding with it (Option A) could violate provincial and federal environmental protection laws (such as CEPA or wildlife protection acts), leading to severe legal penalties and ecological damage. Simply driving over it (Option B) also causes unassessed damage. The professional course of action is to halt the proposed deviation and consult with the environmental experts or the contractor who prepared the ESA. They must assess whether the proposed clearing requires a new permit, a Phase 2 assessment, or an alternative logistical approach that minimizes environmental impact.
