ISACA Certified Information Security Manager Sample Questions (Q194-Q199):

NEW QUESTION # 194

To justify the need to invest in a forensic analysis tool, an information security manager should FIRST:

- A. review comparison reports of tool implementation in peer companies.
- B. substantiate the investment in meeting organizational needs.
- C. review the functionalities and implementation requirements of the solution.
- D. provide examples of situations where such a tool would be useful.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

Explanation:

Any investment must be reviewed to determine whether it is cost effective and supports the organizational strategy. It is important to review the features and functionalities provided by such a tool, and to provide examples of situations where the tool would be useful, but that comes after substantiating the investment and return on investment to the organization.

NEW QUESTION # 195

Which of the following is MOST effective in preventing the introduction of vulnerabilities that may disrupt the availability of a critical business application?

- A. A patch management process
- B. Change management controls
- C. Logical access controls
- D. Version control

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 196

A security incident has been reported within an organization. When should an information security manager contact the information owner? After the:

- A. incident has been mitigated.
- B. incident has been contained.
- C. incident has been confirmed.
- D. potential incident has been logged.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Explanation

= The information security manager should contact the information owner after the incident has been confirmed, as this is the first step of the incident response process. The information owner is the person who has the authority and responsibility for the information asset that is affected by the incident. The information owner needs to be informed of the incident as soon as possible, as they may have to make decisions or take actions regarding the protection, recovery, or restoration of the information asset. The information owner may also have to communicate with other stakeholders, such as the business units, customers, regulators, or media, depending on the nature and impact of the incident.

The other options are not the correct time to contact the information owner, as they occur later in the incident response process. Contacting the information owner after the incident has been contained, mitigated, or logged may delay the notification and escalation of the incident, as well as the involvement and collaboration of the information owner. Moreover, contacting the information owner after the incident has been contained or mitigated may imply that the incident response team has already taken actions that may affect the information asset without the consent or approval of the information owner. Contacting the information owner after a potential incident has been logged may cause unnecessary alarm or confusion, as the potential incident may not be a real or significant incident, or it may not affect the information owner's asset. ### NEW QUESTION # 197

How would an organization know if its new information security program is accomplishing its goals?

- A. Key metrics indicate a reduction in incident impacts.
- B. Senior management has approved the program and is supportive of it.
- C. Employees are receptive to changes that were implemented.
- D. There is an immediate reduction in reported incidents.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Explanation

Option A is correct since an effective security program will show a trend in impact reduction. Options B and C may well derive from a performing program, but are not as significant as option

A. Option D may indicate that it is not successful.

NEW QUESTION # 198

Which of the following is the BEST method to protect against emerging advanced persistent threat (APT) actors?

- A. Implementing a honeypot environment
- B. Providing ongoing training to the incident response team
- C. Updating information security awareness materials
- D. Implementing proactive systems monitoring

Answer: D

Explanation:

= Proactive systems monitoring is the best method to protect against emerging APT actors because it can help detect and respond to anomalous or malicious activities on the network, such as unauthorized access, data exfiltration, malware infection, or command and control communication. Proactive systems monitoring can also help identify the source, scope, and impact of an APT attack, as well as provide evidence for forensic analysis and remediation. Proactive systems monitoring can include tools such as intrusion detection and prevention systems (IDPS), security information and event management (SIEM) systems, network traffic analysis, endpoint detection and response (EDR), and threat intelligence feeds.
