EC-COUNCIL EC Council Certified Incident Handler (ECIH v3) Sample Questions (Q146-Q151):

NEW QUESTION # 146
Stanley works as an incident responder at a top MNC based in Singapore. He was asked to investigate a cybersecurity incident that recently occurred in the company. While investigating the incident, he collected evidence from the victim systems. He must present this evidence in a clear and comprehensible manner to the members of a jury so that the evidence clarifies the facts and further helps in obtaining an expert opinion on the incident to confirm the investigation process. In the above scenario, which of the following characteristics of the digital evidence did Stanley attempt to preserve?

- A. Authenticity
- B. Believability
- C. Admissibility
- D. Completeness

Answer: C

Explanation:
In the scenario described, Stanley's effort to present evidence in a clear and comprehensible manner to the members of a jury, with the intention of clarifying facts and aiding in obtaining expert opinion, aligns with the characteristic of admissibility. The admissibility of digital evidence pertains to its acceptability in a court of law, which hinges on the evidence being collected, handled, and presented in a manner that complies with legal standards and procedures. This includes ensuring the evidence is relevant, reliable, and not overly prejudicial. By preparing to present the evidence in a way that the jury can understand and use to confirm the investigation process, Stanley is focusing on ensuring that the evidence meets the criteria for admissibility in the legal proceedings. Completeness, believability, and authenticity are also important characteristics of digital evidence, but the context provided indicates that Stanley's primary focus is on meeting the legal requirements for the evidence to be considered valid in court.
References:The Incident Handler (ECIH v3) certification materials cover the legal aspects of incident response, including the importance of ensuring the admissibility of evidence in legal proceedings as a fundamental objective of the evidence collection and presentation process.

NEW QUESTION # 147
Bob, an incident responder at CyberTech Solutions, is investigating a cybercrime attack occurred in the client company. He acquired the evidence data, preserved it, and started performing analysis on acquired evidentiary data to identify the source of the crime and the culprit behind the incident.
Identify the forensic investigation phase in which Bob is currently in.

- A. Investigation phas
- B. Post-investigation phase
- C. Pre-investigation phase
- D. Vulnerability assessment phase

Answer: A

Explanation:
Bob is in the Investigation phase of the forensic investigation process. This phase involves the detailed examination and analysis of the collected evidence to identify the source of the crime and the perpetrator behind the incident. It is a crucial step that follows the acquisition and preservation of evidence, where the incident responder applies various techniques and methodologies to analyze the evidentiary data. This analysis aims to uncover how the cybercrime was committed, trace the activities of the culprit, and gather actionable intelligence to support legal actions and prevent future incidents.References:The ECIH v3 certification materials discuss the stages of a forensic investigation, emphasizing the investigation phase as the point at which the incident responder analyzes evidence to draw conclusions about the incident's specifics.

NEW QUESTION # 148
Nervous Nat often sends emails with screenshots of what he thinks are serious incidents, but they always turn out to be false positives. Today, he sends another screenshot, suspecting a nation-state attack. As usual, you go through your list of questions, check your resources for information to determine whether the screenshot shows a real attack, and determine the condition of your network. Which step of IR did you just perform?

- A. Detection anc analysis (or identification)
- B. Preparation
- C. Remediation
- D. Recovery

Answer: A

Explanation:
When you receive a screenshot from Nervous Nat and go through a list of questions, check resources for information to determine the nature of the screenshot, and assess the condition of your network, you are engaging in the Detection and Analysis (or Identification) phase of Incident Response (IR). This phase is about identifying potential security incidents based on reported concerns, anomalies detected by security tools, or through the analysis of security alerts. In this scenario, despite the historical context of false positives, each report is treated seriously, requiring you to collect and analyze information to determine whether a real attack is happening. This involves verifying the validity of the incident, assessing its nature, scope, and impact, and deciding on the appropriate next steps. The detection and analysis phase is critical for determining the course of the IR process, including whether escalation is needed and what response measures should be initiated.
References:The ECIH v3 certification materials outline the Incident Response process, detailing steps from preparation, detection and analysis, containment, eradication, and recovery, to post-incident activities, highlighting the importance of thorough detection and analysis as the foundation for effective incident management.

NEW QUESTION # 149
