IT Specialist HTML5 Application Development Sample Questions (Q60-Q65):

NEW QUESTION # 60

Review the markup segment. Which entry will validate successfully according to the required pattern?

- A. kukX-04-4938-WJDF
- B. Kgyn-23-3978-Uhj6
- C. y7Ts-A34876-ASFr
- D. AGbe-23h-234-HBG6

Answer: A

Explanation:

The valid entry is A, assuming the OCR-corrupted option represents the intended secret-code format: four letters, a hyphen, two digits, a hyphen, four digits, a hyphen, and four letters. The HTML pattern attribute defines a regular expression that an input value must satisfy during constraint validation. MDN specifies that pattern is used to define a regular expression the input value must match. In the intended pattern, the first group must contain exactly four alphabetic characters, the second group exactly two numeric digits, the third group exactly four numeric digits, and the final group exactly four alphabetic characters. Option A satisfies that structure: kukX is four letters, 04 is two digits, 4938 is four digits, and WJDF is four letters. Option B fails because the final group Uhj6 contains a digit. Option C fails because the first group includes a digit and the digit grouping/hyphen structure is wrong. Option D fails because 23h contains a letter where only digits are allowed. References/topics: HTML5 form validation, pattern attribute, regular-expression validation, text input constraints.

NEW QUESTION # 61

Which three events are valid for the HTML canvas element? Choose 3.

- A. play
- B. datareceived
- C. mouseup
- D. scroll
- E. blur

Answer: C,D,E

Explanation:

The valid selections are mouseup, scroll, and blur. A < canvas > element is represented by HTMLCanvasElement, which inherits from HTMLInputElement; therefore, it participates in the normal DOM event model for element-based interaction. mouseup is valid because it is fired on an Element when a pointing-device button is released while the pointer is over that element, which is a common canvas interaction pattern for drawing tools, games, drag tracking, and selection behavior. scroll is valid as an element event when an element is scrolled, and the HTML event-handler index lists onscroll for HTML elements. blur is also valid because it fires when an element loses focus; a canvas can participate in focus workflows, particularly when made focusable with attributes such as tabindex. play is excluded in this certification context because it is a media playback event associated with HTMLMediaElement behavior, not canvas graphics interaction. datareceived is not a standard HTML canvas or DOM event. References/topics: canvas DOM interaction, element event listeners, mouse events, focus events, scroll events.

NEW QUESTION # 62

You create an interface for a touch-enabled application. Some input buttons do not trigger when tapped. What are two possible causes?

- A. The input areas are using event handlers to detect input.
- B. The defined input areas are not large enough.
- C. The input areas overlap with other input areas.
- D. The touch screen is not initialized.

Answer: B,C

NEW QUESTION # 63

Match each property to its corresponding value for creating the CSS flexible box layout.

Move each property from the list on the left to the correct value on the right.

Note: You will receive partial credit for each correct match.

Properties: align-items, direction, display, flex-direction, order

Values: any, flex | inline-flex, flex-start | flex-end | center, row | row-reverse | column | column-reverse, rtl | ltr

Answer:

Explanation:

Properties: align-items, direction, display, flex-direction, order

Values: any, flex | inline-flex, flex-start | flex-end | center, row | row-reverse | column | column-reverse, rtl | ltr

Matched: align-items to flex-start | flex-end | center; direction to rtl | ltr; display to flex | inline-flex; flex-direction to row | row-reverse | column | column-reverse; order to any.

Explanation:

Property	Correct Matching Value
align-items	flex-start   flex-end   center
direction	rtl   ltr
display	flex   inline-flex
order	any

A CSS flexible box layout is created by applying the display property to a container with either flex or inline- flex. This establishes the element as a flex container and causes its child elements to become flex items. The flex-direction property defines the direction of the main axis and accepts row, row-reverse, column, and column-reverse, allowing items to flow horizontally, vertically, or in reverse order. The align-items property controls how flex items are aligned along the cross axis, with values such as flex-start, flex-end, and center.

The direction property controls writing direction and accepts ltr for left-to-right text flow or rtl for right-to-left text flow. Finally, order is applied to individual flex items and accepts an integer value, represented here as "any," because any numeric order value can be used to rearrange item display order without changing the document source order.

NEW QUESTION # 64

You define the following layout:

< !DOCTYPE html >

< html >

```

< head >
< style >
section {
display: flex;
align-items: center;
flex-wrap: wrap;
min-height: 200px;
width: 700px;
background: linen;
section p { flex: 1;
min-width: 200px;
padding: 20px;
}
</style >
</head >
< body >
< h2 > Exhibits to visit at the zoo </h2 >
< section >
< p style= " order: 3 "> Lions
< p style= " order: 4 "> Tigers
< p style= " order: 2 "> Bears
< p style= " order: 1 "> Zoo Trip
</section >
</body >
</html >

For each statement about the markup shown on the left, select True or False.

	True	False
The paragraph containing the text Tigers will display first.	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
The section p CSS refers to the parent flexbox container.	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
When the paragraphs have a width less than 200px, the last paragraph will wrap to the next line.	<input type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>

Answer:

Explanation:

	True	False
The paragraph containing the text Tigers will display first.	<input type="radio"/>	<input checked="" type="radio"/>
The section p CSS refers to the parent flexbox container.	<input type="radio"/>	<input checked="" type="radio"/>
When the paragraphs have a width less than 200px, the last paragraph will wrap to the next line.	<input checked="" type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>

Explanation:

The paragraph containing the text Tigers will display first.
False

The section p CSS refers to the parent flexbox container.

False

When the paragraphs have a width less than 200px, the last paragraph will wrap to the next line.

True

The parent flexbox container is the section element because it has display: flex;. The paragraphs inside the section become flex items. The display order is controlled by each paragraph's inline order value, and flex items are laid out from the lowest order value to the highest. Therefore, Zoo Trip with order: 1 displays first, followed by Bears, Lions, and finally Tigers; the statement that Tigers displays first is false. The selector section p does not refer to the parent flexbox container. It targets paragraph elements inside a section, meaning it styles the flex items, not the flex container. The container itself is targeted by the section rule. The final statement is true in intent because flex-wrap: wrap; allows flex items to move to a new line when they cannot fit in the available row. Since each paragraph has min-width: 200px, items are prevented from shrinking below that minimum and wrapping occurs when available space is insufficient. References/topics:

CSS flexbox, flex container, flex items, order, flex-wrap, min-width.
