NEW QUESTION # 116

What command does a Digital Forensic Examiner use to display the list of all IP addresses and their associated MAC addresses on a victim computer to identify the machines that were communicating with it:

- A. "ifconfig" command
- B. "dd" command
- C. "arp" command
- D. "netstat -an" command

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 117

The policy that defines which set of events needs to be logged in order to capture and review the important data in a timely manner is known as:

- A. Evidence Collection policy
- B. Audit trail policy
- C. Documentation policy
- D. Logging policy

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 118

Sam received an alert through an email monitoring tool indicating that their company was targeted by a phishing attack. After analyzing the incident, Sam identified that most of the targets of the attack are high-profile executives of the company. What type of phishing attack is this?

- A. Puddle phishing
- B. Whaling
- C. Spear phishing

- D. Pharming

Answer: B

Explanation:

Whaling is a specific type of phishing attack that targets high-profile executives or individuals within an organization, often with the intent to steal sensitive information or gain access to their accounts for financial fraud. The term "whaling" is used because it targets the "big fish" of an organization. Given that Sam identified the targets of the attack as high-profile executives, the described scenario is indicative of a whaling attack.

References: The ECIH v3 curriculum includes a section on different types of phishing attacks, including whaling, emphasizing the strategies attackers use to target individuals based on their roles within an organization.

NEW QUESTION # 119

Shiela is working at night as an incident handler. During a shift, servers were affected by a massive cyberattack. After she classified and prioritized the incident, she must report the incident, obtain necessary permissions, and perform other incident response functions. What list should she check to notify other responsible personnel?

- A. Phone number list
- B. Email list
- C. Point of contact
- D. HR log book

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 120

Stanley works as an incident responder at a top MNC based out of Singapore. He was asked to investigate a cybersecurity incident that recently occurred in the company.

While investigating the crime, he collected the evidence from the victim systems. He must present this evidence in a clear and comprehensible manner to the members of jury so that the evidence explains the facts clearly and further helps in obtaining an expert opinion on the same to confirm the investigation process.

In the above scenario, what is the characteristic of the digital evidence Stanley tried to preserve?

- A. Authentic
- B. Admissible
- C. Complete
- D. Believable

Answer: B

Explanation:

In the scenario described, Stanley aims to ensure that the digital evidence he collected is admissible in court.

This means the evidence must be gathered, handled, and presented in a manner that complies with legal standards, ensuring it can be legally used in a trial. Admissibility is a crucial characteristic of digital evidence, as it must be relevant, authentic, and obtained without violating any laws or rights to privacy. The evidence must also be presented in a clear and comprehensible manner to be understood by the members of the jury, which further supports its admissibility in court.

References: The Incident Handler (ECIH v3) certification materials cover the legal aspects of handling digital evidence, including the principles ensuring evidence is admissible in court.
