ISACA Certified Data Privacy Solutions Engineer Sample Questions (Q85-Q90):

NEW QUESTION # 85

From a privacy perspective, it is MOST important to ensure data backups are:

- A. differential
- B. pseudonymized

- C. incremental.
- D. encrypted.

Answer: D

Explanation:

From a privacy perspective, it is most important to ensure data backups are encrypted. Encryption is a process of transforming data into an unreadable form using a secret key or algorithm. Encryption can help protect the confidentiality, integrity, and availability of data backups by preventing unauthorized access, disclosure, or modification. Encryption can also help comply with legal and regulatory requirements for data protection, such as the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) or the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA). Encryption can be applied to data backups at different levels, such as file-level, disk-level, or network-level encryption.

Incremental backups, differential backups, or pseudonymization are also useful for data backup management, but they are not the most important from a privacy perspective. Incremental backups are backups that only copy the data that has changed since the last backup, whether it was a full, differential, or incremental backup. Incremental backups can help save storage space and time, but they do not directly protect the data from unauthorized access or disclosure. Differential backups are backups that only copy the data that has changed since the last full backup. Differential backups can also help save storage space and time, but they also do not directly protect the data from unauthorized access or disclosure. Pseudonymization is a process of replacing identifying information in data with artificial identifiers or pseudonyms. Pseudonymization can help enhance the privacy of data by reducing the linkability between data and data subjects, but it does not prevent re-identification or inference attacks.

NEW QUESTION # 86

Which of the following is BEST used to validate compliance with agreed-upon service levels established with a third party that processes personal data?

- A. Key risk indicators (KRIs)
- B. Industry benchmarks
- C. Contractual right to audit
- D. Key performance indicators (KPIs)

Answer: C

Explanation:

Explanation

The best way to validate compliance with agreed-upon service levels established with a third party that processes personal data is to have a contractual right to audit, which means that the organization can conduct audits or inspections of the third party's privacy practices, policies, and procedures to verify that they meet the contractual obligations and expectations. A contractual right to audit can also help identify and address any privacy risks or gaps that may arise from the third party's processing of personal data¹².

NEW QUESTION # 87

An increase in threats originating from endpoints is an indication that:

- A. network protection should be maintained remotely.
- B. network audit frequency should increase.
- C. credential management should be implemented.
- D. extended detection and response should be installed.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Explanation

Extended detection and response (XDR) is a security solution that collects and analyzes data from multiple sources, such as endpoints, networks, servers, cloud, and applications, to detect and respond to threats in real time. XDR should be installed to address the increase in threats originating from endpoints, as it provides a holistic and integrated view of the threat landscape, as well as automated and coordinated actions to contain and remediate the threats. XDR also helps to improve the visibility, efficiency, and effectiveness of the security operations, as well as to reduce the complexity and costs of managing multiple security tools.

Which authentication practice is being used when an organization requires a photo on a government-issued identification card to validate an in-person credit card purchase?

- A. Possession factor authentication
- B. Knowledge-based credential authentication
- C. Multi-factor authentication

NEW QUESTION # 89

- A. Risk acceptance
- B. Risk reduction
- C. Risk avoidance
- D. Risk mitigation

Answer: C

Explanation:

CDPSE/ISACA risk response taxonomy defines risk avoidance as deciding not to engage in the activity that gives rise to the risk. Reduction/mitigation (B/D) means proceed with controls; acceptance (C) means proceed without additional treatment. Not expanding is classic avoidance.

Key CDPSE-aligned phrasing (short extract): "Risk avoidance: Discontinue or do not initiate activities that create risk."
