ASQ Certified Manager of Quality/Organizational Excellence Exam Sample Questions (Q169-Q174):

NEW QUESTION # 169

A quality manager wants to provide problem-solving training to the company's line employees so they can identify and solve problems in their work areas. Which of the following training scenarios will best meet the quality manager's objectives?

- A.

Audience: Open enrollment	Material: Industry-wide case studies
---------------------------	--------------------------------------

- B.

Audience: Open enrollment	Material: Actual work problems
---------------------------	--------------------------------

- C.

Audience: Work teams	Material: Actual work problems
----------------------	--------------------------------

- D.

Audience: Work teams	Material: Industry-wide case studies
----------------------	--------------------------------------

Answer: D

Explanation:

The ASQ Certified Manager of Quality/Organizational Excellence Handbook, Fifth Edition provides insights into effective quality management practices. In this context, the training scenario in Option B is most suitable for the following reasons:

* Group Interaction: Option B involves a group of employees sitting together, which fosters collaboration and shared learning. Group discussions allow employees to learn from each other's experiences and perspectives.

* Problem-Solving Process: The image in Option B depicts a problem-solving process with clear steps: Define the problem, analyze the cause, identify solutions, implement solutions, and evaluate results. This structured approach ensures that employees follow a systematic method for addressing workplace issues.

* Brainstorming Solutions: The scenario encourages employees to brainstorm solutions. Brainstorming sessions promote creativity, generate diverse ideas, and empower employees to think critically about solving problems.

* Visual Representation: The flowchart in Option B provides a visual representation of the problem-solving process. Visual aids enhance understanding and retention, making it easier for employees to apply the concepts in their work.

* Engagement and Participation: The employees are actively engaged, suggesting that they are invested in finding solutions. This participatory approach aligns with the quality manager's objective of empowering line employees.

In summary, Option B offers a structured, collaborative, and visually supported approach to problem-solving training, making it the most effective choice for achieving the quality manager's objectives.

NEW QUESTION # 172

First Community Bank Holding Company executive management has initiated an environmental scan to determine the strategy to respond to new regulatory standards. Management has observed that the bank has a good reputation in the marketplace, a talented workforce, 600 different options for investment strategies, and a solid management team, which is compensated substantially above industry levels. The bank is considering offering on-line securities trading as a new service to its customers. Which of the following should management consider as an external threat to First Community Bank Holding?

- A. Reputation in the marketplace
- B. New regulatory standards
- C. Compensation above industry standards

Answer: B

Explanation:

As part of the environmental scan, First Community Bank Holding Company's executive management should consider new regulatory standards as an external threat. These standards can significantly impact the bank's operations, compliance requirements, and overall business model. Failure to adapt to or comply with these regulations could lead to legal penalties, operational disruptions, and reputational damage. Therefore, staying informed about and proactively addressing new regulatory requirements is crucial for the bank's success.
