- A. Image contrast
- B. White balance
- C. Color saturation
- D. Image brightness

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 157

An explosion protected camera

- A. uses both optical and thermal technology.
- B. automatically activates a cooling system when needed.
- C. is designed to withstand an external explosion.
- D. contains any internal explosion within its housing.

Answer: D

Explanation:

An explosion-protected camera is specifically designed to contain any internal explosion within its housing.

This type of camera is built to operate in hazardous environments where flammable gases or dust may be present. The robust housing prevents the internal explosion from igniting the surrounding atmosphere, thereby ensuring safety. Axis Communications offers explosion-protected cameras that adhere to stringent safety standards to prevent ignition and ensure reliable operation in dangerous conditions, as detailed in their product specifications.

NEW QUESTION # 159

What is the difference between a zoom lens and a varifocal lens?

- A. There is no difference
- B. A zoom lens maintains focus when changing field of view
- C. A zoom lens always has automatic focus
- D. A varifocal lens has a longer field of view

Answer: B

Explanation:

A zoom lens maintains focus when changing field of view, whereas a varifocal lens does not necessarily maintain focus when changing the focal length. This means that with a zoom lens, you can zoom in or out and the focus will remain sharp, which is particularly useful for applications requiring continuous focus adjustments. In contrast, varifocal lenses need to be refocused after adjusting the focal length. This distinction is important in video surveillance to ensure clear image capture at varying distances.

NEW QUESTION # 160

Which is true regarding the use of a smoked (tinted) dome instead of a clear dome?

- A. Disables infrared capabilities
- B. Decreases color fidelity
- C. Reduces light sensitivity
- D. Decreases field of view

Answer: C

Explanation:

Using a smoked (tinted) dome on a camera reduces light sensitivity because the tinted material filters the amount of light that reaches the camera sensor. This can result in lower image quality, especially in low-light conditions. The decrease in light sensitivity does not affect color fidelity, field of view, or infrared capabilities directly. For more information, refer to Axis Communications' technical notes on dome coverings and their impact on camera performance.
