The Open Group TOGAF Enterprise Architecture Part 1 Exam Sample Questions (Q50-Q55):

NEW QUESTION # 50

Which of the following is included as part of the practice of Architecture Governance?

- A. Interacting with the CxO level on Enterprise Architecture.
- B. Implementation of controls over the creation of architectural components.
- C. Managing stakeholders, their concerns, and their requirements.
- D. Creating and maintaining the Statement of Architecture Work throughout the ADM cycle.

Answer: B

Explanation:

In TOGAF, Architecture Governance is concerned with establishing and operating the structures, processes, and controls that ensure architecture is properly managed and complied with across the enterprise. A central part of this practice is the implementation of controls over the creation and evolution of architectural components. This means governance is not only about defining architecture, but also about ensuring that architecture work products, building blocks, standards, and implementation activities are developed in a controlled and consistent way.

Option B is therefore the best answer because it reflects the core governance function of directing and controlling architecture-related work. Governance in TOGAF includes oversight, compliance assessment, decision rights, dispensations, and monitoring conformance to approved architectures and standards.

Option A may occur in leadership engagement, but it is not the clearest definition of architecture governance practice itself. Option C is incorrect because the Statement of Architecture Work is produced and maintained as part of ADM execution, especially early-phase planning, not as a defining governance practice throughout the full cycle. Option D relates more to stakeholder management and requirements management, which are important architecture activities, but they are not the best direct description of architecture governance.

Therefore, the correct answer is B.

- A. Implementation and Migration Plan
- B. Architecture Roadmap
- C. Architecture Requirements Specification
- D. Implementation Governance Model

Answer: A

Explanation:

The Business Transformation Readiness Assessment technique is used to evaluate the readiness of the organization to undergo change and to identify the actions needed to increase the likelihood of a successful business transformation. These actions should be incorporated in the Implementation and Migration Plan, which is the detailed plan to transition from the Baseline Architecture to the Target Architecture. The Implementation and Migration Plan also includes the Transition Architectures, the Architecture Building Blocks, the Work Packages, the Implementation Governance Model, and the Architecture Contract¹² References: 1: The TOGAF Standard, Version 9.2, Part III: ADM Guidelines and Techniques, Chapter 27: Business Transformation Readiness Assessment 2: The TOGAF Standard, Version 9.2, Part II:

- A. control the bigger changes
- B. govern the stakeholders
- C. take major improvement decisions

Answer: D

Explanation:

The purpose of Enterprise Architecture is to guide effective change by providing a coherent and consistent view of the enterprise's current and future state, as well as the roadmap and principles for achieving it. Enterprise Architecture helps to align business and IT strategies, optimize resources and investments, reduce complexity and risks, enhance agility and innovation, and deliver value to

- B. The ADM is iterative within the first cycle and then between phases
- C. The ADM is sequential Iteration is applied within phases
- D. The ADM is iterative, over the whole process between phases and within phases

Answer: D

Explanation:

This statement best describes iteration and the ADM. The ADM is iterative over the whole process between phases and within phases because it allows for feedback loops and refinements at any point in the architecture development and transition process. Iteration enables architects to address changing requirements, assumptions, constraints, and environments; to validate and improve architectures; to manage risks and issues; and to ensure stakeholder satisfaction and value realization.
