Salesforce Certified Data Architect Sample Questions (Q126-Q131):

NEW QUESTION # 126

A customer wants to maintain geographic location information including latitude and longitude in a custom object. What would a data architect recommend to satisfy this requirement?

- A. Create custom fields to maintain latitude and longitude information
- B. Create formula fields with geolocation function for this requirement.
- C. Create a geolocation custom field to maintain this requirement
- D. Recommend app exchange packages to support this requirement.

Answer: C

Explanation:

The correct answer is C, create a geolocation custom field to maintain this requirement. A geolocation custom field is a compound field that can store both latitude and longitude information in a single field. It also supports geolocation functions and distance calculations. Creating formula fields or custom fields for latitude and longitude separately would be inefficient and redundant. Recommending app exchange packages would not be a direct solution to the requirement.

NEW QUESTION # 127

UC is rolling out Sales App globally to bring sales teams together on one platform. UC expects millions of opportunities and accounts to be created and is concerned about the performance of the application.

Which 3 recommendations should the data architect make to avoid the data skew? Choose 3 answers.

- A. Limit assigning one user 10000 records ownership.
- B. Use picklist fields rather than lookup to custom object.
- C. Limit associating 10000 opportunities to one account.
- D. Limit associating 10000 records looking up to same records.
- E. Assign 10000 opportunities to one account.

Answer: A,C,D

Explanation:

Data skew occurs when a large number of child records are associated with a single parent record, or when a single user owns a large number of records. This can cause performance issues and lock contention. To avoid data skew, the data architect should limit assigning one user 10,000 records ownership, limit associating 10,000 opportunities to one account, and limit associating 10,000 records looking up to the same record.

NEW QUESTION # 128

Northern Trail Outfitters is concerned because some of its data is sensitive and needs to be identified for access.

What should be used to provide ways to filter and identify the sensitive data?

- A. Implement field-level security.
- B. Define data grouping metadata.
- C. Define data classification metadata.
- D. Custom checkbox denoting sensitive data.

Answer: C

Explanation:

According to the official Salesforce guide¹, data classification metadata is a feature that allows administrators to classify data fields based on their sensitivity level, such as confidential, restricted, or general. Data classification metadata can be used to filter and identify sensitive data fields and apply appropriate security measures, such as encryption, masking, or auditing. Option D is the correct answer because it suggests using data classification metadata to provide ways to filter and identify sensitive data. Option A is incorrect because data grouping metadata is not a feature in Salesforce. Option B is incorrect because field-level security is a feature that controls the visibility and editability of fields based on user profiles or permission sets, but it does not provide ways to filter and identify sensitive data. Option C is incorrect because creating a custom checkbox denoting sensitive data is not a scalable or reliable solution, as it requires manual maintenance and does not enforce any security measures.

Universal Containers is exporting 40 million Account records from Salesforce using Informatica Cloud. The ETL tool fails and the query log indicates a full table scan time-out failure. What is the recommended solution?

- B. Modify the export job header to specify Sforce-Enable-PKChunking.
- C. Modify the export query with LIMIT clause with Batch size 10,000.
- D. Modify the export query that includes standard index fields(s).
