PRINCE2 Practitioner Exam Sample Questions (Q36-Q41):

NEW QUESTION # 36

During stage 3, project costs are increasing but there will still be a positive return on investment, as documented in the business case. However, corporate management has recently revised its targets for return on investment and has decided to stop the project as it will not meet the new targets.

Is this an appropriate application of the 'continued business justification' principle?

- A. No, because changes in corporate strategy should not impact a project once authorized.
- B. Yes, because changes in corporate strategy may impact a project's justification.
- C. No, because the project business case still justifies a project.
- D. Yes, because a change in a project's justification should trigger premature closure.

NEW QUESTION # 39

During previous projects, stakeholders became confused when using a number of separate project registers.

Therefore, when preparing the risk management approach, the project manager created a risk register template and added it to an integrated project register. This register is a spreadsheet that includes project assumptions, issues, dependencies, and now risks, on separate pages.

Is this appropriate for a risk register, and why?

- A. No, because assumptions and dependencies are sources of risk.
- B. No, because an integrated project register should include the quality register as well.
- C. Yes, because the project registers should be tailored to meet the needs of the organization.
- D. Yes, because risks are often identified as a result of issues being raised.
