NEW QUESTION # 196

Your network contains an Active Directory Domain Services (AD DS) forest. The forest contains the servers shown in the following table.

On Server1, you create a DNS zone named Zone1.com as shown in the following exhibit.

To which DNS servers is Zone1.com replicated?

- A. Server2 only
- B. Server2, Server3, and Server4 only
- C. Server2, Server3, Server4, and Server5
- D. Server2 and Server4 only
- E. Server2 and Server3 only

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 197

NEW QUESTION # 198

You plan to deploy an Azure virtual machine that will run Windows Server.

You need to ensure that an Azure Active Directory (Azure AD) user named user1@contoso.com can connect to the virtual machine by using the Azure Serial Console.

What should you do? To answer, select the appropriate options in the answer area.

NOTE: Each correct selection is worth one point.

Answer:

Explanation:

Explanation:

In the AZ-800 materials on "Manage and maintain Windows Server IaaS virtual machines," the Serial Console requirement is called out clearly: the VM must have Boot diagnostics enabled so Azure can capture the console and provide an interactive text console during boot and runtime. The guidance explains that enabling Boot diagnostics (either managed or with a storage account) stores the console output and screen shots that the Serial Console relies on. Guest-level diagnostics or a managed identity are not prerequisites for Serial Console access.

Access control to the Serial Console is governed by Azure RBAC. The study guidance states that users must be granted either Virtual Machine Contributor (broad rights) or the minimal login roles; for secure, least-privilege access to a console session with administrative rights, assign Virtual Machine Administrator Login to the user. This role allows interactive sign-in to the VM (RDP/SSH/Serial Console) without granting configuration permissions on the VM.

Therefore, to let user1@contoso.com use the Serial Console while meeting least-privilege objectives, enable Boot diagnostics on the VM (here, with a custom storage account, which satisfies the boot diagnostics requirement) and assign the Virtual Machine Administrator Login role to User1.

NEW QUESTION # 199

Your network contains an Active Directory Domain Services (AD DS) forest named contoso.com. The forest contains the servers shown in the following table.

Server 1 hosts the DNS zone for contoso.com. The General tab of the contoso.com properties is configured as shown in the following exhibit.

Server3 hosts the DNS zone for east.contoso.com and is configured as shown in the following exhibit.

For each of the following statements, select Yes if the statement is true. Otherwise, select No.

NOTE: Each correct selection is worth one point.

Answer:

Explanation:

Explanation:

A secondary DNS zone for contoso.com can be added to Server3.: Yes

If you add a DNS record to contoso.com, the record will replicate to Server2.: Yes If you add a DNS record to east.contoso.com, the record will replicate to Server1.: Yes The replication and availability of DNS data in a Windows Server environment are dictated by the zone type and its replication scope. According to official documentation, Active Directory-integrated zones provide high availability and multi-master replication.

* Secondary Zone Availability: A secondary zone is a read-only copy of a DNS zone hosted on another server (the master).

Standard DNS protocol allows any DNS server, regardless of its role as a Domain Controller, to host a secondary zone for any reachable primary zone. Since Server3 is a member server, it can host a secondary zone for contoso.com to provide local name resolution.

* Replication of contoso.com: The properties for the contoso.com zone on Server1 show the replication scope is set to "All DNS servers in this domain". Since Server1 and Server2 are both domain controllers in the contoso.com domain, any record added to this zone will automatically replicate between them through the Active Directory replication process.

* Replication of east.contoso.com: The properties for the east.contoso.com zone on Server3 show the replication scope is set to "All DNS servers in this forest". In Active Directory, the forest-wide replication scope stores the DNS zone in the ForestDnsZones partition. This partition is replicated to every domain controller that runs the DNS Server service throughout the entire forest. Because Server1 is a domain controller within the same forest (contoso.com root), it will receive the replicated records from the east.contoso.com zone.
