4. Information Security Incident Management – 19%

This is the last subject area you need to successfully master to get the CISM certification. Therefore, you should be ready to demonstrate the following knowledge:

- Knowledge of the relationship of business continuity planning and disaster recovery planning to the incident response plan;
- Knowledge and ability to effectively equip incident response teams through their training and tools;
- Knowledge of the main components of an incident response plan and the concepts and practices of its management;
- Knowledge of escalation processes;
- To detect and analyze information security events, one should have knowledge of technologies.

The CISM certification is widely recognized as a benchmark for excellence in the information security management profession. Certified Information Security Manager certification demonstrates that an individual has the knowledge and skills to develop and manage effective information security programs, and that they are committed to maintaining the highest standards of professionalism and ethics in their work.

The CISM Exam covers four domains that are critical to the role of an information security manager: Information Security Governance, Risk Management, Information Security Program Development and Management, and Information Security Incident Management. CISM exam is designed to test the candidate's knowledge and skills in these domains and their ability to apply them in real-world scenarios.

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 450

Which of the following is the BEST method for ensuring that security procedures and guidelines are known and understood?

- A. Periodic focus group meetings
- B. Employee's signed acknowledgement
- C. Computer-based certification training (CBT)
- D. Periodic compliance reviews

Answer: C

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

Explanation:

Using computer-based training (CBT) presentations with end-of-section reviews provides feedback on how well users understand what has been presented. Periodic compliance reviews are a good tool to identify problem areas but do not ensure that procedures are known or understood. Focus groups may or may not provide meaningful detail. Although a signed employee acknowledgement is good, it does not indicate whether the material has been read and/or understood.

NEW QUESTION # 451

Embedding security responsibilities into job descriptions is important PRIMARILY because it

- A. supports access management.
- B. simplifies development of the security awareness program
- C. strengthens employee accountability.

- D. aligns security to the human resources function.

Answer: C
