Cisco DevNet Associate Exam Sample Questions (Q455-Q460):

NEW QUESTION # 455
What are the two principles of an infrastructure as code environment? (Choose two)

- A. Environments must be provisioned consistently using the same inputs.
- B. Redeployments cause varying environment definitions.
- C. Complete complex systems must be able to be built from reusable infrastructure definitions.
- D. Service overlap is encouraged to cater for unique environment needs.
- E. Components are coupled, and definitions must be deployed for the environment to function.

Answer: A,C

NEW QUESTION # 456

To which stage of development do Infrastructure as Code principles relate?

- A. service provisioning
- B. manual configuration
- C. requirement collection
- D. physical deployment

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 457

Which two statements describe the advantages of using a version control system? (Choose two.)

- A. It allows developers to write effective unit tests.
- B. It provides tooling to automate application builds and infrastructure provisioning.
- C. It allows multiple engineers to work against the same code and configuration files and manage differences and conflicts.
- D. It allows for branching and merging so that different tasks are worked on in isolation before they are merged into a feature or master branch.
- E. It provides a system to track User Stories and allocate to backlogs.

Answer: C,D

Explanation:
If you have a team of developers working on a project, all writing new code or changing previously written code, losing those files could set you back weeks or months. Version control can protect your code by allowing changes to be checked in (through a process known as a code commit) to a hierarchical tree structure of folders with files in them. You often don't know what a developer might need to change or has changed, but the version control system does. Each check-in is tagged with who made the change and what the person changed within the code.
Instead of using inefficient techniques such as file locking, a version control system handles concurrent check-ins, allowing two programmers to commit code at the same time. [..] Another aspect of a version control system is the ability to branch and merge code built independently.
This is very useful if you are writing code on a part of an application that could conflict with another part written by another team.

NEW QUESTION # 458

What should a CI/CD pipeline aim to achieve?

- A. to provide a documented process for feedback
- B. to require minimal manual interaction
- C. to support new deployments on a fixed monthly schedule
- D. to allow manual testing before deployment

Answer: B

Explanation:
A CI/CD (Continuous Integration/Continuous Deployment) pipeline aims to automate the process of integrating code changes, testing them, and deploying them to production with minimal manual intervention. This automation improves efficiency, reduces errors, and ensures consistency across deployments. The key goal is to streamline and expedite the software development lifecycle by allowing developers to focus more on coding and less on the deployment process. Manual interaction is minimized to maintain the flow and reliability of the pipeline.

NEW QUESTION # 459

Refer to the exhibit.
Which workflow does the script automate?

- A. updates a media server that is being monitored
- B. adds a media server to be monitored
- C. retrieves a media server that is being monitored

- D. deletes a media server that is being monitored

Answer: B

Explanation:
The provided script sends a POST request to the Meraki API endpoint to add a new media server for monitoring. The payload includes the name and address of the media server, indicating that the action being automated is the addition of a media server to the monitoring list.
