NEW QUESTION # 165

Which of the following is the MOST important privacy consideration for video surveillance in high security areas?

- A. Video surveillance recordings may only be viewed by the organization.
- B. Those affected must be informed of the video surveillance.
- C. Video surveillance data must be stored in encrypted format.
- D. There is no limitation for retention of this data.

Answer: B

Explanation:

One of the key principles of data protection is transparency, which means that individuals have the right to be informed about the collection and use of their personal data. This applies to video surveillance as well, especially in high security areas where the impact on privacy may be significant. Therefore, it is important to inform those affected by video surveillance about the purpose, scope, retention and access policies of the data collected.

NEW QUESTION # 166

An organization wants to ensure that endpoints are protected in line with the privacy policy. Which of the following should be the FIRST consideration?

- A. Implementing network traffic filtering on endpoint devices
- B. Hardening the operating systems of endpoint devices
- C. Managing remote access and control
- D. Detecting malicious access through endpoints

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 167

When can data subjects be prohibited from withdrawing consent for processing their personal data?

- A. When the data is being archived in the public interest
- B. When there is an absence of overriding legitimate grounds
- C. When the processing is unlawful
- D. When the data is no longer necessary

Answer: A

Explanation:

According to the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR), data subjects have the right to withdraw their consent for processing their personal data at any time. However, this right does not apply when the processing is necessary for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes, in accordance with Article 89(1) of the GDPR.

NEW QUESTION # 168

Which of the following is the BEST control to secure application programming interfaces (APIs) that may contain personal information?

- A. Sharing only digitally signed APIs
- B. Encrypting APIs with the organization's private key
- C. Requiring nondisclosure agreements (NDAs) when sharing APIs
- D. Restricting access to authorized users

Answer: D

Explanation:

Restricting access to authorized users is the best control to secure application programming interfaces (APIs) that may contain personal information, as it would prevent unauthorized access, modification or disclosure of the personal information by third parties or intermediaries. Restricting access to authorized users can be achieved by using various methods, such as authentication, authorization, encryption, tokens or certificates. The other options are not effective controls to secure APIs that may contain personal information. Encrypting APIs with the organization's private key is not a feasible or desirable method, as it would make the APIs unreadable by anyone who does not have the corresponding public key, which would defeat the purpose of using APIs for interoperability and integration. Requiring nondisclosure agreements (NDAs) when sharing APIs is not a reliable or enforceable method, as it would depend on the compliance and cooperation of the parties who receive the APIs, and it would not prevent unauthorized access, modification or disclosure of the personal information by third parties or intermediaries who are not bound by the NDAs. Sharing only digitally signed APIs is not a sufficient method, as it would only ensure the authenticity and integrity of the APIs, but it would not prevent unauthorized access, modification or disclosure of the personal information by third parties or intermediaries who can read or intercept the APIs. p. 90-91 Reference: 1: CDPSE Review Manual (Digital Version)
