NEW QUESTION # 18

A brewer uses a local HMI to communicate with a controller that opens a pump to move the work from the boil kettle to the fermenter. What level of the Purdue model would the controller be considered?

- A. Level 3
- B. Level 4
- C. Level 0
- D. Level 2
- E. Level 1

Answer: E

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation From Exact Extract:

The Purdue Enterprise Reference Architecture (PERA) model, commonly used in ICS security frameworks like GICSP, segments industrial control systems into hierarchical levels that correspond to the function and control of devices:

Level 0: Physical process (sensors and actuators directly interacting with the process) Level 1: Basic control level (controllers such as PLCs or DCS controllers that execute control logic and command actuators) Level 2: Supervisory control (HMIs, SCADA supervisory systems that interface with controllers) Level 3: Operations management (Manufacturing Execution Systems, batch control, production scheduling) Level 4: Enterprise level (business systems, ERP, corporate IT) In this scenario, the controller opening the pump is a device executing control logic directly on the process, placing it at Level 1. The local HMI used to communicate with the controller is at Level 2, supervising and providing operator interface.

This classification is foundational in GICSP's ICS Fundamentals and Architecture domain, which emphasizes clear understanding of network segmentation and device role for security zoning.

NEW QUESTION # 19

What is an output of a Business Impact Analysis?

- A. Calculating the financial impact of a technology failure
- B. Prioritizing the business's processes
- C. Understanding all of the business's technology functions
- D. Determining the maximum time that systems can be offline

Answer: B

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation From Exact Extract:

A Business Impact Analysis (BIA) primarily produces a prioritization of the business's processes (B) based on their criticality and impact on organizational goals.

While BIAs help understand downtime tolerance (A) and financial impacts (C), prioritization is the core output guiding recovery efforts.

Understanding technology functions (D) is part of broader asset and risk management but not the primary BIA output.

GICSP highlights BIA as essential for aligning ICS recovery priorities with business needs.

NEW QUESTION # 20

Which of the following is a containment task within the six step incident handling process?

- A. Re-imaging a workstation that was exhibiting worm-like behaviour
- B. Checking to ensure that the most recent patches were deployed to a web application server
- C. Creating a forensic image of a compromised workstation
- D. Validate fix using a vulnerability scan of the hosts within the DMZ

Answer: A

Explanation:

Containment in incident handling involves limiting the damage caused by an incident and preventing its spread.

Re-imaging a compromised workstation (C) is a direct containment action to remove malicious software and restore system integrity.

(A) Patch verification and (D) validation scans are part of recovery or prevention phases.

(B) Creating forensic images is an evidence preservation task, not containment.

The GICSP incident handling process emphasizes containment as an immediate action to stabilize the environment before eradication and recovery.
