- A. Quantitative Research
- B. Consequence Scanning
- C. Journey Mapping

The development team sees the risk in changing a mature product. What should a strategy designer recommend to help create alignment between the team?

- A. Define acceptance criteria and acceptance testing to validate intended outcomes.
- B. Create a prioritized product roadmap to ensure future releases address known challenges.
- C. Share stories from customer reach to create a common understanding of challenges.

Answer: C

Explanation:

The best recommendation to help create alignment between the team is to share stories from customer research to create a common understanding of challenges, as this helps empathize with the customer pain points and needs and foster a user-centric mindset.
