Huawei HCIA-Security V4.0 Sample Questions (Q103-Q108):

NEW QUESTION # 103
When forwarding a TCP, UDP, or ICMP packet, the firewall needs to query the session table in order to determine the connection to which the packet belongs and take corresponding measures.

- A. FALSE
- B. TRUE

Answer: B

Explanation:
Huawei firewalls are stateful devices. This means they do not evaluate every packet only by static rules; instead, they track communications as sessions and then handle subsequent packets based on the session state.
When the first packet of a flow arrives, the firewall matches it against the security policy, performs checks (and NAT if configured), and if allowed, it creates a session entry in the session table. That entry records key information such as source/destination IP addresses, protocol, ports or identifiers, zones, NAT translation information, timeout values, and the current state.
After the session is created, later packets of the same TCP/UDP flow, or related ICMP traffic, are forwarded efficiently by querying the session table first. If a matching session exists and the state is valid, the firewall applies the corresponding actions (permit/deny, NAT mapping, logging, QoS, inspection) without repeating the full policy lookup each time. If no session matches, the firewall treats the packet as a new flow and re- evaluates it against policies. Therefore, the statement is true.

NEW QUESTION # 104
When we use digital signature technology, the receiver needs to use the sender's () to decode the digital signature and obtain the digital fingerprint.

NEW QUESTION # 105
Which of the following is not a block cipher algorithm among symmetric encryption algorithms?

- A. RC4
- B. RC2
- C. RC6
- D. RC5

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 106
Which of the following are antivirus response actions of the firewall?

- A. Alert
- B. Declare
- C. Delete attachment
- D. Block

Answer: A,C,D

Explanation:
On a firewall that includes antivirus inspection, the device can take different response actions after it detects malware in traffic (for example, in file transfers, email attachments, or web downloads). Block is a standard antivirus action: the firewall stops the session or drops the infected content to prevent the malicious file from reaching the destination host. Alert (alarm/log) is also a common response action: the firewall generates an event, log, or alarm so administrators can investigate the source, destination, file type, signature name, and policy that triggered the detection.
Some firewall antivirus engines also support content-handling actions such as deleting an attachment (or stripping the infected file/attachment) while allowing the rest of the session to proceed, depending on the protocol and security profile. This is typically used in scenarios like email or file-based protocols where removing the infected payload is feasible.
Declare is not a normal antivirus response action on firewalls; it does not describe a meaningful enforcement or notification behavior.
Therefore, the valid antivirus response actions here are Block, Alert, and Delete attachment.

NEW QUESTION # 107
The advantages of symmetric key encryption are high efficiency, simple algorithm, low system overhead, and suitable for encrypting large amounts of data.
