- B. Data owner
- C. Data custodian
- D. Data protection officer

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation

The data owner is the person or entity who has the ultimate authority and responsibility for the protection of personal data collected by an organization. The data owner defines the purpose, scope, classification, and retention of the personal data, as well as the rights and obligations of the data subjects and other parties involved in the data processing. The data owner also ensures that the personal data is handled in compliance with the applicable privacy laws and regulations, as well as the organization's privacy policies and standards.

The data owner may delegate some of the operational tasks to the data processor, data custodian, or data protection officer, but the accountability remains with the data owner.

NEW QUESTION # 251

An organization plans to implement a new cloud-based human resources (HR) solution with a mobile application interface. Which of the following is the BEST control to prevent data leakage?

- A. Single sign-on is enabled for the mobile application.
- B. Separate credentials are used for the mobile application.
- C. Data stored in the cloud-based solution is encrypted.
- D. Download of data to the mobile devices is disabled.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Explanation

The best control to prevent data leakage for a cloud-based HR solution with a mobile application interface is to disable the download of data to the mobile devices. This is because downloading data to the mobile devices increases the risk of data loss, theft, or unauthorized access, especially if the devices are lost, stolen, or compromised. Disabling the download of data to the mobile devices ensures that the data remains in the cloud-based solution, where it can be protected by encryption, access control, and other security measures. The other options are not as effective or sufficient as disabling the download of data to the mobile devices, as they do not address the root cause of the data leakage risk, which is the exposure of data outside the cloud-based solution.

NEW QUESTION # 252

A global organization is planning to implement a customer relationship management (CRM) system to be used in offices based in multiple countries. Which of the following is the MOST important data protection consideration for this project?

- A. Identity and access management mechanisms to restrict access based on need to know
- B. Industry best practice related to information security standards in each relevant jurisdiction
- C. Encryption algorithms for securing customer personal data at rest and in transit
- D. National data privacy legislative and regulatory requirements in each relevant jurisdiction

Answer: D

Explanation:

Explanation

National data privacy legislative and regulatory requirements in each relevant jurisdiction are the most important data protection consideration for a global organization that is planning to implement a customer relationship management (CRM) system to be used in offices based in multiple countries, as they would determine the legal obligations and responsibilities of the organization with respect to the collection, use, disclosure and transfer of customer personal data across different jurisdictions. National data privacy legislative and regulatory requirements may vary significantly from country to country, depending on the type or nature of personal data or data processing activities, and may impose different rules and standards for obtaining consent, providing notice, ensuring security, enforcing rights, reporting breaches, appointing representatives or transferring data. The organization would need to comply with the national data privacy legislative and regulatory requirements in each relevant jurisdiction where it operates or where its customers are located, and to implement appropriate measures and safeguards to ensure compliance. The other options are not as important as national data privacy legislative and regulatory requirements in each relevant jurisdiction as data protection considerations for a global organization that is planning to implement a CRM system to be used in offices based in multiple countries. Industry best practice related to information security standards in each relevant jurisdiction may provide some guidance or benchmarks for ensuring security of customer personal data, but they may not reflect the specific context or needs of the organization or the customers, or comply with the legal obligations and responsibilities of the organization. Identity and access management mechanisms to restrict access based on need to know may help to protect customer personal data from unauthorized access, modification or disclosure by internal or external parties, but they may not address other aspects of data protection, such as consent, notice, rights, breaches, representatives or transfers. Encryption algorithms for securing customer personal data at rest and in transit may help to protect customer personal data from unauthorized access, modification or disclosure by internal or external parties, but they may not address other aspects of data protection, such as consent, notice, rights, breaches, representatives or transfers¹, p. 63-64 References: 1: CDPSE Review Manual (Digital Version)
