What is essential to secure leadership buy-in for scaling up agile?

- A. Speaking the language of leadership
- B. Empowering teams to self-manage
- C. Ensuring emphasis on doing agile
- D. Ensuring that all decisions are made by leadership

Answer: A

Explanation:

Speaking the language of leadership is essential for securing leadership buy-in when scaling agile. This means framing agile benefits, risks, and requirements in terms that resonate with leaders-such as business value, risk management, and return on investment-rather than just agile jargon.

While empowering teams (D) and emphasizing agile practices (C) are important, without leadership understanding and support, agile scaling is unlikely to succeed. Ensuring all decisions come from leadership (B) contradicts agile principles of decentralization and empowerment.

Effective communication tailored to leadership priorities fosters alignment and commitment.
