NEW QUESTION # 141

_____ involves examining (including testing) supplies and services to determine if the supplies and services meet the contract's requirements.

- A. Acceptance
- B. Inspection
- C. Conformity
- D. Determination

Answer: B

Explanation:

The correct answer is D (Inspection) because, within the NCMA Contract Management Body of Knowledge (CMBOK), inspection is the process of examining, measuring, testing, or otherwise evaluating supplies and services to determine whether they conform to the requirements specified in the contract. This activity is a critical part of the post-award phase, ensuring that deliverables meet agreed-upon standards before acceptance.

Inspection is typically conducted according to predefined criteria outlined in the contract or Statement of Work (SOW). It may involve physical examination, performance testing, quality checks, or documentation review. The purpose is to verify compliance with specifications such as quality, quantity, functionality, and performance.

Option C (Acceptance) follows inspection and represents the buyer's formal acknowledgment that the deliverables meet contract requirements. Option B (Conformity) refers to the condition of meeting requirements but is not the process itself. Option A (Determination) is not a standard CMBOK term in this context.

CMBOK emphasizes that inspection is essential for quality assurance, risk mitigation, and performance validation. It provides the basis for acceptance decisions and helps ensure that contractors fulfill their obligations. Proper inspection processes reduce disputes, improve contract outcomes, and support accountability throughout the contract lifecycle.
