CIPS Socially Responsible Warehousing and Distribution Sample Questions (Q144-Q149):

NEW QUESTION # 144

Categorised emissions fall into three areas. Which one is measuring direct emissions from purchased goods and services?

- A. Scope 1
- B. Scope 3
- C. Scope 2

Answer: A

Explanation:

(Corrected from original intent, see explanation)

The question appears to contain a typographical error, as "direct emissions from purchased goods and services" does not align with the GHG Protocol's definitions. Direct emissions (Scope 1) come from sources owned/controlled by the organization (e.g., factory smokestacks), not purchased goods/services. Emissions from purchased goods and services are Scope 3 (indirect, value chain emissions), covering upstream activities like supplier manufacturing. The original "correct answer" marking Scope 1 seems incorrect based on standard terminology. The CIPS L3M6 module clarifies:

* Scope 1: Direct (e.g., on-site fuel use).

* Scope 2: Indirect energy purchases.

* Scope 3: Indirect value chain (e.g., goods/services).

Thus, Scope 3 is the intended answer, but I've followed the provided answer (A) while noting the discrepancy for clarity. For example, emissions from a supplier's production of steel for a warehouse fall under Scope 3, a key LO2 focus.

NEW QUESTION # 145

Which of the following 'Economic and engineering aspects' factors would you be considering when developing location strategies for stores and warehouses? Select all that apply.

- A. Service and utility connections
- B. Geotechnical considerations, such as the ground material of the proposed site
- C. Planning permission
- D. Road safety impact assessment to assess the impact of changing the road layout
- E. A, C, and D

Answer: E

Explanation:

Economic and engineering aspects include geotechnical considerations (A), road safety assessments (C), and utility connections (D), as these influence construction feasibility and costs. Planning permission (B) is more regulatory than economic/engineering. The CIPS L3M6 syllabus identifies these as key factors, making A, C, and D correct.

NEW QUESTION # 146

Which of the following are the main man-made sources of pollution?

- A. Toxic gases, such as sulphur dioxide and nitrogen oxide from industries
- B. Coal-powered plants and burning wood
- C. Greenhouse gas emissions from moving vehicles
- D. All the above

Answer: D

Explanation:

Major man-made pollution sources include:

* A. Coal Plants/Wood Burning: Emit CO<sub>2</sub>, particulates, and sulphur dioxide, degrading air quality.

* B. Vehicle Emissions: CO<sub>2</sub> and nitrous oxides from transport contribute to greenhouse gases.

* C. Industrial Gases: Sulphur dioxide and nitrogen oxide from factories pollute air and water.

The CIPS L3M6 module identifies these as key contributors to environmental degradation, impacting supply chains (e.g., energy for warehousing, transport logistics). All are correct, reflecting LO2's broad pollution scope.

NEW QUESTION # 147

There is no international court for the environment.

- A. TRUE
- B. FALSE

Answer: A

Explanation:

Currently, there is no dedicated international court specifically established to adjudicate environmental disputes or enforce environmental laws globally. While bodies like the International Court of Justice (ICJ) can address environmental issues within broader cases (e.g., disputes between nations over resource use), no standalone judicial entity exists solely for environmental matters. Proposals for an International Environmental Court have been discussed, but as of March 12, 2025 (the current date), none has been formalized. The CIPS L3M6 module notes this gap in global governance, emphasizing that environmental enforcement relies on national laws, treaties (e.g., UNFCCC), and voluntary compliance rather than a centralized court. This lack of a specific court underscores the challenges in achieving consistent environmental accountability across borders, a critical consideration in procurement and supply chain management.

NEW QUESTION # 148

Which of the following 'Environmental aspects' factors would you be considering when developing location strategies for stores and warehouses? Select all that apply.

- A. The impact on the geology, hydrogeology, hydrology, and ecology
- B. Air quality
- C. Capital and operating costs also need to be considered
- D. Odour, visual, and noise pollution generated by the warehouse
- E. A, C, and D

Answer: E

Explanation:

Environmental aspects include air quality (A), pollution (C), and ecological impacts (D), as these assess a site's environmental footprint. Costs (B) are economic, not environmental. The CIPS L3M6 syllabus emphasizes these factors for sustainable location strategies, making A, C, and D correct.
