You are installing a Primary Application Server and a Central Services instance for an AS Java-based SAP system What is the minimum number of Java server nodes you must configure?

- A. 0
- B. 1
- C. 2
- D. 3

Answer: A

Explanation:

For an AS Java-based SAP system, including the Primary Application Server and a Central Services instance, the minimum number of Java server nodes required is 1 (A). This configuration provides the basic environment necessary for the Java stack to operate, allowing for the execution of Java-based applications and services. It is the foundational setup for any Java-based SAP system, ensuring that the system can handle Java requests and processes. Larger environments or systems with higher availability or performance requirements may require additional Java server nodes, but the minimum to establish a functioning AS Java-based SAP system is one.

NEW QUESTION # 47

You want to create an ABAP task list in a development system to transport it to the production system.

What must you do?

Note: There are 2 correct answers to this question.

- A. Assign the task list to a customizing transport request.
- B. Activate the task list.
- C. Assign the task list to a workbench transport request.
- D. Assign the task list to a package

Answer: B,D

Explanation:

An ABAP task list is a sequence of ABAP tasks that can be executed automatically or manually in an SAP system. An ABAP task can be a function module, a method, or a report that performs a specific action. To create an ABAP task list in a development system and transport it to the production system, you need to do the following:

Assign the task list to a package. A package is a container for development objects that belong to the same application or software component. By assigning the task list to a package, you enable the transport of the task list along with its dependent objects to other systems.

Activate the task list. Activation is the process of generating the executable code and metadata of the task list and storing them in the database. Only activated task lists can be executed or transported to other systems. You do not need to assign the task list to a customizing or a workbench transport request, as these are different types of transport requests that are used for different purposes. A customizing transport request is used to transport configuration changes that are made in the Customizing IMG. A workbench transport request is used to transport development objects that are created or changed in the ABAP Workbench. A task list is neither a configuration change nor a development object, but a sequence of ABAP tasks that can be executed in any system.
