CompTIA A+ Certification Exam: Core 1 Sample Questions (Q262-Q267):

NEW QUESTION # 262

Which of the following connectors will uplink a new ISP cable modem to its wall jack?

- A. Lightning
- B. LC
- C. RJ45
- D. F-type

Answer: D

Explanation:

A cable modem connects to an ISP's wall jack using a coaxial cable, and the standard connector used for coaxial connections is the F-type connector. According to CompTIA Core 1 (220-1201) networking hardware and cabling objectives, F-type connectors are specifically designed for coaxial cabling used in cable television and cable internet (DOCSIS) installations. These connectors screw onto the coaxial wall outlet and the cable modem, ensuring a secure physical connection and proper signal transmission.

An LC connector is a fiber-optic connector commonly used with single-mode or multimode fiber cables and is not associated with cable modems. An RJ45 connector is used for Ethernet networking and is typically used to connect the cable modem to a router or computer, not to the wall jack. Lightning is a proprietary Apple connector used for charging and data transfer on mobile devices and has no role in network uplinks.

CompTIA expects candidates to clearly distinguish between different cable types and connectors based on the service being installed. When the scenario involves a cable modem and ISP wall jack, the correct and standard connector is the F-type.

NEW QUESTION # 263

A management team is concerned about enterprise devices that do not have any controls in place. Which of the following should an administrator implement to address this concern?

- A. MDM
- B. MFA
- C. vpn
- D. SSL

Answer: A

Explanation:

Mobile Device Management (MDM) enables administrators to enforce controls on enterprise devices, such as restricting apps, ensuring compliance, and remotely managing security policies.

Why Not B (MFA): Multi-Factor Authentication secures user access but does not control device configurations.

Why Not C (VPN): VPN secures communication but does not enforce device controls.

Why Not D (SSL): SSL secures data in transit but does not provide device management.

NEW QUESTION # 264

A user ran out of USB ports on their laptop but wants to plug in more devices. What technology is best?

- A. USB receiver
- B. Bluetooth
- C. Near-field communication
- D. Port replicator

Answer: D

Explanation:

A port replicator expands the number and types of ports available to a laptop, including additional USB ports, video outputs, Ethernet, and more. CompTIA A+ identifies port replicators as solutions for users needing greater connectivity, especially when docking stations are unnecessary or unavailable.

Port replicators connect through a single USB or proprietary connector and provide multiple expansion ports instantly. This resolves the issue of limited USB availability without requiring hardware replacement.

NFC (A) is used for short-range communication, not peripheral connectivity. Bluetooth (B) only supports wireless peripherals such as mice and headphones, not wired USB devices. A USB receiver (C) adds wireless capability for one specific device, not general expansion.

Thus, the correct solution is a port replicator.

NEW QUESTION # 265

A company wants to have fast read speeds for its locally stored data

a. Which of the following configurations has the lowest cost to fulfill this requirement?

- A. RAID 10
- B. RAID 0
- C. RAID 5
- D. RAID 1

Answer: B

Explanation:

RAID 0 (striping) provides the fastest read (and write) speeds at the lowest cost, as all disk capacity is used for storage and performance. However, it offers no redundancy.

From CompTIA A+ 220-1101 Official Study Guide, Objective 3.4 - RAID types:

"RAID 0 stripes data across multiple disks, offering the best performance and lowest cost but no fault tolerance." Verified Source: CompTIA A+ Core 1 (220-1101) Official Study Guide, Chapter 3: RAID Levels CompTIA Exam Objectives 220-1101, Domain 3.4

NEW QUESTION # 266

Which of the following cable types must be used when running copper network cable through a suspended ceiling that is used for air ventilation?

- A. Coaxial
- B. Plenum
- C. Twisted pair
- D. Multimode

Answer: B

Explanation:

When installing copper network cable in spaces that serve as air-handling plenums, safety regulations require the use of plenum-rated cable. Suspended ceilings used for ventilation fall into this category.

CompTIA A+ emphasizes that plenum spaces require cable with low-smoke, fire-resistant insulation made from specialized materials that limit toxic emissions during combustion.

Plenum-rated cabling (CMP) is designed to meet strict fire codes such as NFPA 70 (National Electrical Code). It prevents smoke-filled ventilation pathways, which could rapidly spread fire or toxic fumes throughout a building. Standard PVC-jacketed twisted pair cables are not permitted in plenum spaces because they produce thick, toxic smoke when burned.

Multimode cable refers to fiber optics, not copper cabling. Coaxial cable is used for broadband and certain RF applications but does not inherently meet plenum safety requirements unless specifically plenum-rated.

Twisted pair describes the cable's internal structure (Cat5e, Cat6, etc.), but it does not indicate the type of jacket. Only plenum-rated twisted pair is acceptable.

Therefore, the correct answer is Plenum, as it ensures compliance with safety standards and building codes, prevents hazardous conditions, and aligns with CompTIA best practices for structured cabling installations.
