The SecOps Group Certified AppSec Practitioner Exam Sample Questions (Q33-Q38):

NEW QUESTION # 33
Which HTTP header is used by the CORS (Cross-origin resource sharing) standard to control access to resources on a server?

- A. Access-Control-Request-Headers
- B. Access-Control-Allow-Headers
- C. None of the above
- D. Access-Control-Request-Method

Answer: B

Explanation:
Cross-Origin Resource Sharing (CORS) is a security mechanism that allows servers to specify which origins can access their resources, relaxing the Same-Origin Policy (SOP) for legitimate cross-origin requests. CORS uses specific HTTP headers to control this access. The key header for controlling access to resources is Access- Control-Allow-Origin, which specifies which origins are permitted to access the resource. However, among the provided options, the closest related header is Access-Control-Allow-Headers, which is part of the CORS standard and controls which request headers can be used in the actual request (e.g., during a preflight OPTIONS request).
* Option A ("Access-Control-Request-Method"): This header is sent by the client in a preflight request to indicate the HTTP method (e.g., GET, POST) that will be used in the actual request. It is not used by the server to control access.
* Option B ("Access-Control-Request-Headers"): This header is sent by the client in a preflight request to list the headers it plans to use in the actual request. It is not used by the server to control access.
* Option C ("Access-Control-Allow-Headers"): This header is sent by the server in response to a preflight request, specifying which headers are allowed in the actual request. While Access-Control- Allow-Origin is the primary header for controlling access, Access-Control-Allow-Headers is part of the CORS standard to manage header-based access control, making this the best match among the options.
* Option D ("None of the above"): Incorrect, as Access-Control-Allow-Headers is a CORS header.
The correct answer is C, aligning with the CAP syllabus under "CORS Security" and "HTTP Headers." References: SecOps Group CAP Documents - "CORS Configuration," "Security Headers," and "OWASP Secure Headers Guide" sections.

NEW QUESTION # 36
Harry is the project manager of the MMQ Construction Project. In this project Harry has identified a supplier who can create stained glass windows for 1,000 window units in the construction project. The supplier is an artist who works by himself, but creates windows for several companies throughout the United States. Management reviews the proposal to use this supplier and while they agree that the supplier is talented, they do not think the artist can fulfill the 1,000 window units in time for the project's deadline. Management asked Harry to find a supplier who will guarantee the completion of the windows by the needed date in the schedule. What risk response has management asked Harry to implement?

- A. Transference
- B. Acceptance
- C. Mitigation
- D. Avoidance

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 37
Walter is the project manager of a large construction project. He'll be working with several vendors on the project. Vendors will be providing materials and labor for several parts of the project. Some of the works in the project are very dangerous so Walter has implemented safety requirements for all of the vendors and his own project team. Stakeholders for the project have added new requirements, which have caused new risks in the project. A vendor has identified a new risk that could affect the project if it comes into fruition. Walter agrees with the vendor and has updated the risk register and created potential risk responses to mitigate the risk. What should Walter also update in this scenario considering the risk event?

- A. Projectcontractual relationship with the vendor
- B. Project management plan
- C. Project communications plan
