ISTQB Certified Tester Advanced Level - Test Manager Sample Questions (Q53-Q58):

NEW QUESTION # 53

You are the manager of a test team. You inherited most of these people from a previous manager who promoted technical skills, particularly programming skills. As a result, your people are very strong in test automation skills, white box testing and complex test design techniques. You have just been told that you can hire five new people. You want the new people to complement the existing skill sets and you want to be sure the team will have a strong mutual respect.

Given the following options, who should you hire? [3]

- A. Hire a mix of people with strong testing and domain skills.
- B. Hire all black box testers because you are severely lacking in that skill set.
- C. Hire customer support people who have experience with the customer interface.
- D. Hire college interns who can be trained by the existing people.

Answer: A

Explanation:

The best option to hire new people for your test team is to hire a mix of people with strong testing and domain skills. This means that the new people have both the technical knowledge and the business understanding to test the software system effectively and efficiently. Hiring a mix of people with strong testing and domain skills can complement the existing skill sets of your test team, as well as enhance the team's diversity, creativity, and collaboration. Hiring a mix of people with strong testing and domain skills can also help the team to achieve a balance between white box and black box testing, and to cover different aspects and perspectives of the software system.

NEW QUESTION # 54

You are Test Manager on a new project and have estimated the test effort to be 500 days, assuming that you will find no more than 50 defects and 5 test iterations being required. The project manager has said the estimate is too high. Which of the following options could enable you to reduce this estimate?

SELECT ONE OPTION

- A. Allow more time for the developers to fix the defects found.
- B. Agree an increase in the Unit test coverage before the code is delivered to your test team.
- C. Assign more test analysts to the test execution phase.
- D. Increase the regression test coverage.

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 55

You are writing a system test level plan and are defining the test activities that must take place during test implementation. There is an established project risk register in place, with product risks addressing all new features to be developed. Three time-boxed cycles of system test execution are planned, and all the new features will be delivered in the first cycle.

The project test strategy states that the stakeholders require an overall view of the product quality for these features. This should be achieved by planning to test each product risk, to some degree, during the first cycle of test execution.

Which risk-based mitigation approach should be adopted during test implementation, to BEST meet the stakeholders' requirement?

- A. Cost of exposure analysis
- B. FMEA
- C. Depth-first test scheduling

- D. Breadth-first test scheduling

Answer: D

Explanation:

Breadth-first test scheduling ensures that all identified risks are at least partially covered early in the test execution. This meets the stakeholder requirement of having an "overall view of product quality" in the first cycle. This strategy contrasts with depth-first, which goes deep on a few risks but ignores others at first, potentially missing critical early signals. Breadth-first aligns with the risk-based testing approach, where test prioritization aims at giving broad early insight into product risk mitigation.

NEW QUESTION # 56

Most managers in your company consider the efforts of your test team valuable, while others see comprehensive testing as an unnecessary cost overhead to the SDLC.

What action could the Test Manager take to quantify the value of testing to the organization? [3]

- A. Develop metrics that illustrate planned and actual testing hours.
- B. Demonstrate the role QA has in similar size organizations.
- C. Review the Test Plan with the management team.
- D. Determine the cost of external failures.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Determining the cost of external failures involves analyzing the impact of defects that escape into production. This includes the direct costs associated with fixing the defects, as well as the indirect costs such as customer dissatisfaction, damage to the company's reputation, and potential loss of business. By quantifying these costs, the Test Manager can illustrate the financial benefits of comprehensive testing in preventing high-cost external failures, thereby demonstrating its value as an investment rather than a cost overhead.

Reference:

The ISTQB Advanced Level Test Manager documents provide guidelines on how to establish and use metrics to measure the effectiveness and efficiency of the testing process, including the cost of quality and the Return on Investment (ROI) for testing activities. These references support the rationale behind choosing option C as the verified answer.

NEW QUESTION # 57

Referring to SCENARIO 2 It has been agreed that Project 1 will be delivered using an Agile approach, with user stories delivered across three sprints, each lasting 4 weeks. The programme manager is concerned about RISK 3 and wants the Master Test Plan to specify an effective test process improvement approach.

Which of the following is the best test process improvement approach for Project 1 ? SELECT ONE OPTION

- A. A TMMi assessment should be run at the end of each sprint to identify improvements for the next sprint.
- B. A CTP assessment should be run after each sprint to identify critical test processes that need improving.
- C. Test process improvement is not possible for this project as the Agile approach does not allow time to make improvements.
- D. Short post-sprint review sessions should be conducted to identify areas of improvement for the next sprint.

Answer: D
