Adobe Real-Time CDP Business Practitioner Professional Sample Questions (Q23-Q28):

NEW QUESTION # 23

An Adobe Real-Time CDP (RTCDP) administrator would like to better control how downstream marketers enable segments for activations.

What next steps should the administrator take to better protect the dataset from being misused in activations?

- A. Configure manual review of all activations
- B. Lean on performance guardrails of the Adobe RTCDP
- C. Establish data usage labels across the Adobe RTCDP
- D. Set entity limits across Adobe RTCDP components

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 24

A data architect is configuring an XDM data model to onboard customer data to the Real-Time Customer Profile. Which three items should the data architect keep in mind when defining identities for the data model? (Choose three.)

- A. A schema must use an identity Map for ingesting identities.
- B. A schema must have one primary identity and one other person identity.
- C. A schema must have a single primary identity in order for the schema to be enabled for use in the Real-Time Customer Profile.
- D. A schema's identity field(s) should have values unique to a single customer profile.
- E. Field(s) intended to be used for identity service must be of type string.

Answer: C,D,E

NEW QUESTION # 25

What determines which records become part of the profile during Adobe Real-Time CDP's profile assembly process?

- A. The associated merge policy of the dataset where the record resides
- B. The alignment with the specified segmentation rule in the audience management module
- C. The manual selection by the data architect overseeing the data management process
- D. The specific identity graph that has been associated with the profile

Answer: A

Explanation:

In Adobe Real-Time CDP, the profile assembly process is governed by Merge Policies. When data is ingested from multiple sources, it often results in "profile fragments"-disparate pieces of information about the same individual. The Merge Policy acts as the set of rules that the Real-Time Customer Profile service uses to determine how these fragments are prioritized and combined into a single, unified view.

A Merge Policy specifies two critical components: the Identity Stitching method (Private Graph or Co-occurrence) and the Attribute Prioritization. The latter determines which dataset's values "win" in the event of a conflict (e.g., if Dataset A says a user lives in New York and Dataset B says Los Angeles). By associating a dataset with a specific merge policy, the architect ensures that only the data intended for the unified profile is included and that the most accurate, authoritative source is represented.

Options B and C are incorrect because profile assembly is an automated structural process, not a manual selection or a result of segmentation logic. Option D is incorrect because the identity graph defines the links between identities, but the Merge Policy is what defines the rules for the data assembly itself. Therefore, the Merge Policy is the ultimate arbiter of how records are merged and which data points constitute the final

"Active Profile."

NEW QUESTION # 26

A data engineer is responsible for ingesting data from various batch sources into Real-Time CDP.

After reviewing the profiles, the engineer observed missing data on a variety of profiles. What is a possible reason for the missing data from the Real-Time Customer Profile?

- A. Records exceeding 50KB in size are automatically discarded.
- B. Some records exceeded 10KB in size.
- C. Some records exceeded 100KB in size.
- D. Some records exceeded 1MB in size.

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 27

What are key capabilities of Adobe RT-CDP's data ingestion process? (Select two.)

- A. Batch ingestion for large datasets.
- B. Streaming real-time data for profile updates.
- C. Enabling probabilistic segmentation during ingestion.

- D. Restricting ingestion to static customer segments.

Answer: A,B
