CFA Institute Sustainable Investing Certificate (CFA-SIC) Exam Sample Questions (Q270-Q275):

NEW QUESTION # 270

The main growth driver of greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions is:

- A. Carbon dioxide from fossil fuels and industry
- B. Carbon dioxide from land use, land-use change, and forestry
- C. Methane from the melting permafrost

Answer: A

Explanation:

The largest driver of global greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions is carbon dioxide (CO₂) from fossil fuels and industry, accounting for approximately 75% of total GHG emissions. This includes emissions from coal, oil, and natural gas combustion for energy, manufacturing, and transportation.

While land-use change (C) contributes significantly (~10-15%), and methane (A) is a potent GHG, CO₂ from fossil fuels remains the dominant factor driving climate change.

NEW QUESTION # 271

According to the International Corporate Governance Network (ICGN) Model Mandate:

- A. An investment manager should disclose an assessment of ESG risks that are embedded in the portfolio.
- B. Disclosure of voting activity is sufficient to satisfy the requirement of engagement disclosure.
- C. An investment manager should disclose the long-term secular trends and themes that have influenced portfolio construction.

Answer: A

Explanation:

The ICGN Model Mandate provides guidelines for institutional investors on governance, ESG integration, and stewardship practices.

Why B (Disclose ESG risks in portfolios) is correct:

The ICGN Model Mandate states that investment managers should assess and disclose ESG risks that affect their portfolios.

This ensures transparency and helps asset owners understand risk exposures.

Why not A or C?

A is incorrect-disclosing voting activity alone does not fulfill the full engagement disclosure requirement.

C is incorrect-while long-term themes are relevant, ESG risk assessment is a more explicit requirement.

NEW QUESTION # 272

Which of the following statements about ESG integration databases is least accurate?

- A. The completeness of coverage varies substantially across ESG tools from different providers
- B. Correlation between ESG ratings of issuers by different providers is high
- C. Divergence between ESG ratings hampers the ambition of companies to improve their ESG performance

Answer: B

Explanation:

One of the most cited issues in ESG data is the low correlation between ESG ratings from different providers. This inconsistency arises from differing methodologies, weightings, and data sources.

"ESG ratings from different providers often show low correlation... making it difficult for investors to compare ratings and for companies to respond to a unified set of ESG expectations." Thus, option A is least accurate, while B and C reflect common observations.

NEW QUESTION # 273

Passive investors typically start engagement by:

- A. Identifying an issue impacting a specific economic sector.
- B. Identifying investment underperformers.
- C. Seeking a direct discussion with senior management.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Passive investors, unlike active investors, do not frequently trade securities but instead hold investments that track an index. Their engagement strategy is typically broad and issue-based rather than firm-specific.

Passive investors, such as large asset managers (e.g., BlackRock, Vanguard, and State Street), generally begin engagement by identifying sector-wide ESG risks or opportunities that may affect long-term value.

They then engage with companies within the sector to improve transparency and governance on these issues, often using proxy voting and public statements to drive change.

This differs from active investors, who may focus on underperformers or specific management discussions.

NEW QUESTION # 274

The triple bottom line accounting theory considers people, profit, and:

- A. planet
- B. efficiency.
- C. licence to operate

Answer: A

Explanation:

The triple bottom line accounting theory considers people, profit, and planet. This framework expands the traditional financial bottom line to include social and environmental dimensions, emphasizing sustainable and responsible business practices.

People: This dimension focuses on the social aspects of business, including employee welfare, community engagement, and human rights. It assesses the impact of business activities on stakeholders and society at large.

Profit: The profit dimension includes the traditional financial performance of the business. It measures the economic value generated by the company and its contribution to shareholders and the economy.

Planet: The planet dimension addresses the environmental impact of business operations. It considers factors such as resource use, waste management, carbon emissions, and overall environmental sustainability.
