The Open Group TOGAF Business Architecture Foundation Exam Sample Questions (Q122-Q127):

NEW QUESTION # 122
In what TOGAF ADM phase is the information map linked to other business blueprints?

- A. Phase A
- B. Phase E
- C. Phase B
- D. Preliminary Phase

Answer: C

Explanation:
In the TOGAF ADM (Architecture Development Method), Phase B is the Business Architecture phase. During this phase, the information map, which represents the relationships and flow of information within the business, is linked to other business blueprints. This linkage is crucial to ensure that the business architecture is aligned with the data and information needs of the organization, providing a foundation for the development of subsequent architecture domains (Data, Application, and Technology Architectures).

NEW QUESTION # 123
Exhibit.
Consider the diagram of an architecture development cycle.
Select the correct phase names corresponding to the labels 1, 2 and 3?

- A. 1 Requirements Management - 2 Implementation Governance - 3 Preliminary
- B. 1 Architecture Governance - 2 Implementation Governance - 3 Preliminary
- C. 1 Continuous Improvement - 2 Migration Planning - 3 Architecture Vision
- D. 1 Requirements Management - 2 Change Management - 3 Strategy

Answer: A

Explanation:
The diagram of an architecture development cycle shows three phases of the TOGAF ADM. The correct phase names corresponding to the labels 1, 2 and 3 are Requirements Management, Implementation Governance, and Preliminary respectively3. These phases are described as follows:
* Requirements Management (label 1): This phase provides a process for managing architecture requirements throughout the ADM cycle3. It ensures that requirements are captured, stored, prioritized, and addressed by relevant ADM phases3. It also ensures that requirements are validated and updated as necessary3.
* Implementation Governance (label 2): This phase provides a process for ensuring that the implementation projects conform to the defined architecture3. It involves establishing an implementation governance model, defining architecture contracts and compliance reviews, and monitoring and supporting the implementation projects3.
* Preliminary (label 3): This phase provides a process for preparing and planning the architecture project3. It involves defining the scope and vision of the project, customizing the ADM process and content framework, defining principles and governance structures, and evaluating the enterprise architecture maturity and readiness3.

NEW QUESTION # 124
Where are business scenarios used most prominently in the TOGAF ADM?

- A. They are used to resolve impacts across the Architecture Landscape in Phases B, C, and D.
- B. They are used as part of the lessons learned activity at the end of Phase F.
- C. They are used in the Phase A to discover and document business requirements.

- D. They are used as part of a business transformation readiness assessment in Phase E.

Answer: C

Explanation:
Business scenarios are most prominently used in Phase A (Architecture Vision) of the TOGAF ADM. In this phase, they help in discovering and documenting business requirements by providing detailed and realistic descriptions of business situations. Business scenarios help in identifying the key business drivers, goals, and challenges, ensuring that the architecture development is aligned with the actual needs of the business.

NEW QUESTION # 125
What process is used to decompose a set of business capabilities to communicate more detail?

- A. Layering
- B. Mapping
- C. Leveling
- D. Sorting

Answer: C

Explanation:
The process used to decompose a set of business capabilities to communicate more detail is leveling6. Leveling is a technique that can be used to break down a business capability into sub-capabilities at lower levels of granularity6. Leveling can help to provide more clarity and specificity about what a business capability entails and how it supports the business goals and objectives6. Leveling can also help to identify dependencies, gaps, overlaps, or redundancies among business capabilities6.

NEW QUESTION # 126
Which of the following Business Architecture concepts should the architect examine and search for when developing the Architecture Vision?

- A. Organization Map. Business Capabilities
- B. Architecture Principles, Business Goals
- C. Implementation Factor Catalog. Business Value Assessment Matrix
- D. Architecture Continuum, Architecture Repository

Answer: B

Explanation:
When developing the Architecture Vision, which is part of the TOGAF ADM Phase A, architects should examine the Architecture Principles and Business Goals. These components provide the foundational guidance and the strategic context for the architecture work. They ensure that the resulting architecture aligns with the overall direction and objectives of the enterprise.
