ISQI IREB Certified Professional for Requirements Engineering. Foundation Level Sample Questions (Q127-Q132):

NEW QUESTION # 127

In requirements engineering, conflicts between stakeholders can arise due to differing perspectives. Which of the following best describes an interest conflict?

- A. A conflict arising from misunderstandings due to ambiguous terminology in requirements documentation.
- B. A scenario where two workers that dislike each other avoid talking to reach a common ground.
- C. A situation where stakeholders disagree due to differing interpretations of the same information.
- D. A disagreement caused by stakeholders having competing goals, such as cost reduction versus performance improvement.

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 128

Which of the following sentences about template-based requirements is FALSE?

- A. They aren't the most flexible.
- B. They put obstacles in capturing the most relevant information.
- C. They may lead requirements engineers to not focus on the requirements' contents.
- D. They look more uniform than requirements written in natural language.

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 129

You would like to design a requirements document in such a way that it is particularly well suited to the project participants who are to continue working with it. Please select from the following statements the two most appropriate assignments of requirement properties to participants. (1 Point)

- A. For the project manager the requirements must be evaluated.
- B. For the developers the requirements must be easily changeable.
- C. For maintenance the requirements must be testable.
- D. For the tester the requirements must be practicable.
- E. For all participants the requirements must be consistent.

Answer: A,E

NEW QUESTION # 130

Complete the gap:

"_____ conflicts arise from differences in the fundamental principles of the stakeholders involved. They are more personal and tied to broad, long-term perspectives."

- A. Value
- B. Interest
- C. Structural
- D. Relationship

Answer: A

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation From Exact Extract:

The conflict typology in CPRE distinguishes data, interest, value, relationship and structural conflicts. Value conflicts occur when stakeholders' underlying beliefs, ethics or world-views clash-for example, safety vs. profit or privacy vs. data exploitation. These conflicts are deeply rooted, personal and stable over time, so they are hard to resolve by negotiation alone. Relationship conflicts stem from personal animosities or communication problems; interest conflicts concern competing goals; structural conflicts result from power or resource imbalances. Thus, "value" correctly completes the statement.

NEW QUESTION # 131

Which of the following sentences is correct?

- A. A requirement may be understood as a representation of a stakeholder's need.
- B. "Technical" is one of the three kinds of requirements.
- C. The utmost goal of Requirements Engineering is to satisfy users' desires and needs.
- D. "Non-functional" is one of the three kinds of requirements.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation From Exact Extract:

In CPRE, a requirement is defined as a documented representation of a need, capability or property.

Requirements capture what stakeholders need or expect from a system rather than the system itself. Users are only one class of stakeholders; sponsors, regulators, operators and maintainers also have needs that must be represented. IREB further distinguishes three main kinds of requirements: functional requirements, quality requirements and constraints, not "technical" or "non-functional" as primary categories. Thus, treating a requirement as a documented representation of stakeholder needs is correct and aligned with the foundational definition.
